Fighting Two Religions Do Bootleggers Pray? A Flying Family Enlisting in Harlem

By Arthur Brisbane

Following savage and cowardly attacks on Jews in Berlin, men and women beaten indiscriminately, the Nazi attitude toward Catholics becomes more bitterly hostile. Prussia's President, General Goering, complains that some Catholics greet each other with the salutation, "Hail, Jesus Christ," instead of using the Nazi formula, "Heil, Hitler."

General Goering says:

"We will not tolerate reappearance of aspirations formerly entertained by the Catholic Center party."

Denouncing priests of the Catholic Church, he says:

"We will fight them even more energetically under their lying and hypocritical disguises."

General Goering and his Nazi associates will find that fighting two religions at once shows lack of caution and wisdom, and brutal treatment of minorities does not pay.

If bootleggers ever pray, which is doubtful, they are on their knees now, praying that Congress may pass a bill allowing distribution and sale of alcoholic drinks "in bulk." This would enable bootleggers to empty the legal "bulk" package, refill it with bootleg liquor, for retailing, and repeat as often as might be desired.

The public has some protection against poisonous bootleg, when it knows the bottle from which it is poured and knows the man that sells it. But with "bulk" distribution, protection against bootleggers would vanish, and bootlegging would be here forever.

When Langley was showing how flying could be done, before anybody could fly, it seemed preposterous for a newspaper man, at a dinner given by John Brisben Walker, to predict that within his lifetime men would fly over both oceans.

Today, flying is youth's favorite "sport." Three days ago, a new Stinson plane left the Newark airport headed for Denver, Col., arriving seven hours later, stopping at Chicago on the way.

A young man of twenty-four, Bruce A. Gimbel, Yale, 1935, was the pilot. The passengers were his mother and his sister, Hope Gimbel.

A few years more and such expeditions, with son or daughter piloting the rest of the family from ocean to ocean, or across the Atlantic, will be as much a matter of course as son or daughter piloting the family automobile today. Wonderful youth!

In Harlem, upper part of New York city, inhabited by 300,000 colored men and women, fifteen hundred men have volunteered to fight in Abyssinia. All that enlisted were charged twenty-five cents apiece for registration, assured that this would guarantee free transportation to an Ethiopian battlefield. White racketeers are said to be capitalizing Harlem's race patriotism.

The colored clergy will probably warn young men that enlisting for foreign service is against the laws of the United States, and that fighting in Ethiopia, in company of lions, rhinoceroses, crocodiles, tse-tse flies, and wild tribesmen that eat raw hippopotamus meat could not possibly be pleasant.

In spite of warnings, the "African Esquadrille" is said to have many members.

If Italian mothers, their sons sent to Abyssinia, have cause, they read, they must worry. You heard that Abyssinian witch doctors would leave bottles filled with tse-tse flies near Italian troops, the sun would melt the stoppers of the bottles, the flies, angry at detention, would bite the Italians, and they would die of "sleeping sickness."

Also, those witch doctors would first curse the springs and wells, then poison them for the benefit of Italians. Such things seemed sufficient to justify "poison gas for Abyssinia in large doses."

And that is only part of it, according to the Associated Press, which cables from Istanbul, "Constantine" to make it out, about Ethiopia's Galla tribesmen, most savage of Ethiopian fighters, real savages. They tame lions, teach them to attack the enemy, as, in the days of St. Patrick, fierce, enormous Irish wolf-hounds were trained to fight, hurling themselves against infantry.

The Gallas, using lions, will make young Italian soldiers think they are back in the old Roman Forum. The Gallas are no mollycoddles, their favorite diet is "raw hippopotamus meat."

Because he descends from King Solomon, the Ethiopian emperor is called the "Conquering Lion of Judah."

Think of young Italians starting out across the Abyssinian

Two deaths marked another wave of heat that appeared heading for a record today.

John McCool, 54, of 29 Allston street, Dorchester, a vacuum cleaner salesman, collapsed in front of 79 Waldeck street, Dorchester, and was pronounced dead on arrival at City Hospital.

An unidentified boy was drowned in Flax Pond, Lynn.

Many prostrations were reported. In Lowell, Mrs. Emma Waldron, 70, of Dutton street, collapsed near city hall and was taken to St. John's Hospital in serious condition.

Israel Maller, 53, of Broadway, Malden, was overcome in the State Street subway station and removed to Haymarket Relief Hospital.

Tempered through the early morning hours by a slight breeze, the heat started over the 80 mark at 9 o'clock with the prospect of exceeding yesterday's maximum of 93. The record for the date is 96, established in 1878. The mercury has risen over 90 five times on this date in 50 years.

Taking advantage of a tide at flood just after noon-day, thousands headed for the nearby beaches during the morning and fortunate week-enders began their trek to mountain and shore resorts.

A humidity several degrees above normal added to the discomfort.

Increasing cloudiness with probable thunder showers and a shift to easterly winds were expected to bring relief tonight.

Two deaths were attributed to the weather conditions yesterday, one directly from heat, another from drowning.

First Swim Costs Life

Hampstead, N. H., July 19—Arthur Clow, 19, of Hinsdale, went out in a boat today on Island Pond with two other youths.

"The only way to learn to swim," said Clow—who didn't know how—"is to jump overboard. Then you'll have to swim."

Before his companions could stop him, Clow leaped, to prove his point. He never came up.

Police dragged for the body while officers questioned his companions.

THE TWO ROOSEVELTS

A Hypothetical Dialogue

PRES. ROOSEVELT in an interview with GOV. ROOSEVELT

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT: We have undertaken a new order of things.

We have proceeded throughout the nation a measurable distance on the road toward the new order . . .

Let him who, for speculative profit or partisan purpose, without just warrant, would seek to disturb or dispel this assurance, take heed before he assumes responsibility for any act which would slow our onward steps.

Throughout the world change is the order of the day. In every nation economic problems, long in the making, have brought crises of many kinds for which the masters of old practise and theory were unprepared.

The outlines of the new social order, rising from the disintegration of the old, are apparent. (Annual message to Congress, January 4, 1935.)

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT: The doctrine of regulation and legislation by "master-minds," in whose judgment and will all the people may gladly and quietly acquiesce, has been too glaringly apparent at Washington during these last ten years.

Were it possible to find "master-minds" so unselfish, so willing to decide unhesitatingly against their own personal interests or private prejudices, men almost godlike in their ability to hold the scales of justice with an even hand—such a government might be to the interests of the country; BUT THERE ARE NONE SUCH ON OUR POLITICAL HORIZON, AND WE CANNOT EXPECT A COMPLETE REVERSAL OF ALL THE TEACHINGS OF HISTORY. (From radio address broadcast from coast to coast on March 2, 1930.)

20 MILLIONS FOR PUBLIC WORKS

With but four of the 16 members in the role of outright dissenters, the legislative ways and means committee today voted to give Governor Curley $20,800,000 for a building and public works program.

The chief executive had asked for $35,000,000.

Two issues of these bonds will be made, one for five years, of $13,000,000, and one for 10 years, of $7,800,000.

The $13,000,000 bond issue may be used by the Governor, in part of in its entirety on projects in conjunction with federal aid if the federal aid equals 55 per cent of the cost of the project.

The $7,800,000 must be devoted entirely to projects in conjunction with the federal government.

The four members of the ways and means committee who recorded themselves as opposed to the bond plan were Representatives Bigsiow, of Brookline, Baker of Newton, Sessions of Hampden and Herter of Boston.

Efforts which have been put forth for several weeks to make a party fight of the bond issues failed signally, many Republicans voting with the Democrats in the committee action.

Of the $13,000,000 to be made available, the governor plans a program of harbor dredging, harbor improvement and sidewalks on state highways.

Both issues will be financed from the state's gasoline tax. Replying to objectors to that feature of the program Governor Curley said:

"We must take this money where we can find it, and where it may be obtained, or starving people will take it from us this winter. Hungry men know only one constitution!"

Matron Loses Pup, Also Rescue Try

Losing a battle with two truckmen, Mrs. Violet Roscoe, young Back Bay matron, also lost her six-month-old police dog today.

Mrs. Roscoe was in her Astor street apartment when she saw the truckmen climbing back on the truck with the pup.

Running from the house, Mrs. Roscoe jumped aboard the truck and attempted to seize her pet, but when the truck started, she was forced to jump off.

She furnished the registration number of the truck to police.

Husband Held As Wife Dies

Mrs. Catherine Kelliher, 52, was found dead in bed in her lodging house on Worcester street, South End, today, under circumstances that caused the arrest of her husband, Francis Kelliher, 55.

Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner, told police she had been beaten and that a preliminary examination of her organs led to a suspicion she may have been poisoned.

He will send the organs to Harvard Medical School for chemical analysis.

Mrs. Kelliher suffered a fracture of the left jaw from a blow, Dr. Joseph Dwyne, of City Hospital, first physician called, told police.

Kelliher was booked on a charge of "assault and battery on his wife, causing her death."

DRIVE ALL TO GHETTOS IS PLAN

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, July 19—War to the hilt against Jews, Communists, reactionaries, and "politically - minded churchmen" was agreed upon today at an important conference of high Nazi leaders in Berlin.

On the heels of Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering's severe campaign against Catholics and Protestants allegedly conducting "a subversive political campaign against the state," and the launching of a movement apparently designed to revive the ghetto of the middle ages, the Nazis decided to "clean out reactionaries and dampen growing Jewish arrogance."

The current of war was called by Paul Joseph Goebbels, anti-Semitic minister of propaganda.

Their first action was to oust Police President Von Levtzow of Berlin, seemingly because he failed to use sufficiently strong measures in coping with the Jewish situation in Berlin.

Count Wolf von Helldorf was appointed to succeed him.

He acknowledged the honor with this pledge:

"A sweeping cleanup of Germany's capital is necessary. Members of the Nazi party, police and storm troopers must co-operate.

"Communists, reactionaries, and all subversive anti-state elements must be cleaned out. Together with this, we must dampen growing Jewish arrogance."

In the light of the anti-Semitic campaign which has swept Berlin with new force under the editorial guidance of Julius Streicher, archpriest of anti-Semitism in Munich, Von Helldorf's selection was regarded as a master stroke.

VIOLENTLY ANTI-SEMITIC

In 1932 he was sentenced to six months in prison on charges of instigating the first anti-Jewish riots in Berlin since the World War. That war was the days of the republic, before Hitler came to power. Von Heildorf is regarded as violently anti-Semitic and belongs to the radical wing of the Nazi party.

Wild Streicher's bitter anti-Semitic publication, "Der Stuermer," as ther Bible and guidebook, scores of his radical henchmen covered the city, plastering signs on the walls of neighborhood Jewish shops which read:

"He who buys from a Jew is a traitor!"

The boycott campaign opened

AIR BOMBERS HOLD EUROPE AT MERCY IN NEXT WAR

TONS OF DEATH HELD READY, SAYS KNICKERBOCKER

ARTICLE FIVE

(Editor's note: If war broke out today, 5000 tons of bombs and poison gas could be dropped upon the civilian population centers of Europe, H. R. Knickerbocker discloses in the fifth article of his series "The Great Chaos.")

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

(World Copyright, 1935, by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

London, July 19—Europe trains its population in passive air defense, but Europe has no faith in it.

Europe expands its anti-aircraft forces, but Europe does not believe in them.

Europe does not believe that anything yet invented can prevent the bombers from getting through.

In Europe's opinion only one thing can answer air-attack, and that is air attack on your enemy's capital.

"Reprisals" is the war-cry of the future conflict and today the very terminology of Europe's armies is adapted to that form of fighting.

Bombing planes are called "retaliators," and pursuit planes "interceptors."

If you have so many retaliators that you can wipe out your enemy's civilian population faster than he can wipe out yours, then maybe he will not start the process. This is the only defense Europe believes in so far.

BOMBING WOMEN, CHILDREN

A peaceful nation thus would be forced to go out and bomb women and children to death in order to check the bombing of its own women and children.

It was against this inhuman choice that Baldwin and Chamberlain, Churchill and MacDonald protested so violently in the British Parliament, and it was to discover a way around this choice that they established their air research committees with Professor Frederick Alexander Lindemann as its chief scientist.

He is specially commissioned to find a new weapon to defeat the bomber. What his weapon will be nobody knows.

Just now it is announced that a marvellous new anti-aircraft gun has been designed for the British navy.

Called a "Mark M. Pom-Pom," it is a group of eight shrapnel machine-guns, firing simultaneously several hundred rounds a minute of high explosive shells so sensitive that they will burst on the slightest contact with any part of an airplane.

LIGHT AID TO AIM

But the modern fast bomber flies at 250 miles an hour, and a shell takes nearly a minute to reach 20,000 feet, so that while the shell is on its way the bomber flies four miles.

If the bomber flies these four miles in the direction it had when the shell was fired, it will be a hit. If the bomber dives or climbs it probably would, it will not be hit.

Next come the sound locators, extraordinary delicate instruments which help spot the plane.

Then there is the grid searchlight which illuminates vast portions of the sky in a checker-board whereon it holds the attacking plane in target position for the "Archies."

Finally there are the fighting planes, in Britain the "furies," "super furies" with the capacity to climb to 20,000 feet so fast that fifteen minutes notice would fill the London skies with eager young British pilots thirsting for the enemy.

AT MERCY OF FOG

The Vickers detector, the sound locators, the searchlight, the guns and the furies are no good when fog comes.

London is misty most of the time. Bombers can now be guided by wireless. The art of blind flying has been developed to such an extent that long flights have been made by instruments alone with no view of the ground from take-off to landing.

Bombers, in European opinion, will always get through.

Then the last war. In the war the anti-aircraft had to fire 20,000 rounds to obtain one hit.

Now with the Vickers detector, which is supposed to box in the enemy plane with a circle of fire, the anti-aircraft people claim to be able to bring one down in eight planes engaged by their fire. But this is only when they count.

Meanwhile the "retaliators," skimming the roofs at 250 miles an hour, and equipped with the new bombing sights which give an accuracy approaching gunfire, would rake the city's brain and heart with a concentrated barrage of high explosive, thermite incendiary and poison gas bombs.

So Europe is building retaliators. Their size, load and range have already reached monstrous proportions.

Italy's Caproni 905B carries 12 tons of bombs.

France is building a series of giant night-bombers carrying five tons each.

Britain has the new 31-ton Sarafand, built by Short Brothers of Manchester, with six Rolls Royce engines developing 5500 horse power to carry a crew of 10 with a load of 11 tons of fuel, bombs, guns and ammunition at an average speed of 150 miles an hour for 1500 miles non-stop.

BIG LOADS OF DEATH

In order to increase still further the load of bombs a plane can carry the Germans have perfected catapults starters which greatly add to the initial velocity of the plane.

The English have devised a double airplane, now being built by Short Brothers. It is a four-engined monoplane flying boat carrying on its wing another four-engined plane which by reason of its heavy load of fuel and bombs would not be able to take off unaided.

In the takeoff, the two machines use their combined flying power and after sufficient height and speed have been attained the coupling gear is released, the lifter machine flies back to its base and the business machine goes on with its bombs.

These are bombers actually in operation or under construction. Not a week passes in Europe without the announcement in one country or another of new, larger, speedier types. By the time the next war comes, today's estimate that 5000 tons of high explosives and poison gas could be dropped on Europe's centers of population in the first day of warfare may be a gross under-statement.

(Read Knickerbocker's answer to this question in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

WITNESS PAID WHILE HIDING

By International News Service

Washington, July 19—Disclosure that a fugitive witness from a grand jury investigation into war department contracts was paid large sums at the direction of A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney-general, while in hiding, was made before the House military affairs committee today.

The committee is inquiring into activities of the firm of Joseph Silverman & Brothers, dealers in surplus army clothing, which was accused by Chairman McSwain of "profiteering" nearly $500,000 around Washington in an effort to obtain war department business.

Frank Thomas Bielaski, who acted as Joseph Silverman's attorney in New York, the committee learned that Frank Belcher, the missing witness, was given periodic payments of $100 during the time the justice department was conducting a nation-wide search for him.

HITLER WARS ON JEWS ANEW

with gusto, indicating Streicher may be trying to duplicate the great national boycott of all Jewish business which was launched soon after Hitler came to power and which resulted in counter-boycotts all over the world.

The original boycott gradually died out, but in view of recent anti-Semitic drives all over the country, culminating this week in the brutal beatings of Jews in streets in the heart of Berlin, it was not unlikely the new drive against Jewish shop-owners would develop into a boycott nearing the proportions of the first.

MORE RIOTS IN BERLIN

In Berlin's northern district customers of Jewish shops were reported chased down side streets.

Howling youths attacked customers coming from one large Jewish-owned ice cream plant last night. Eye witnesses said purchases were snatched from the hands of customers and thrown into their faces.

With officialdom backing up Streicher with orders in many towns, including Berlin, forbidding Jews to bathe in public baths frequented by "Aryans" and with the press presenting only one side of the anti-Semitic crisis, it appeared official Germany was trying to drive Jews back into ghetto such as existed in the middle ages.

Beginning with Rome in 1555 and later in many large cities of Italy, Central Europe and Germany, ghettos were established as the only parts of the city in which Jews were permitted to live.

Berlin today was plastered with large posters, many of them expensively elaborate, calling Jews liars, enemies and traitors.

"German women and girls—Jews are your misfortune," read one of the posters.

In addition to forbidding the use of public baths to Jews, officialdom backed Streicher's campaign by arresting Jewish and gentile man and women seen together in public—a direct method of forcing the Jews into the Ghetto life by preventing their association with other Germans.

GIRLS ON "BLACK LIST"

Newspapers in Saxony today displayed prominently a "black list" of the 15 "so-called Aryan girls" whose Jewish friends recently were sent to a concentration camp at Saxonburg.

At Lindorf, in Hessen, a 30-year-old Jewish cattle dealer, Julius Mannheimer, was arrested and imprisoned at Hemeln on charges of assaulting a 16-year-old Aryan girl. Mannheimer denied the charge, but it was stated examination of the girl proved the charges correct.

At Coiberg, a Jew named Gotha was arrested for the "racial disgrace" of having intimate relations with an Aryan girl who became a mother.

Boston Man Tells Probers Public Must Pay for Lobby

By Associated Press

Washington, July 19—Testimony that the ultimate consumer will have to pay the cost of the power company campaign against the Utility Bill was given in the Senate lobby committee today by William A. Hill of Boston, an attorney for the Associated Gas and Electric Company.

This concern has estimated its expenditures in attempting to defeat the holding company bill at $700,000.

The committee also heard from U. E. Beach of Ithaca, N. Y., securities manager for Associated, that he instructed company managers all over the country last week to "destroy" all their records bearing on opposition to the legislation.

HAS RECORDS DESTROYED

Details of a midnight conference in a Washington hotel, at which witnesses subpoenaed in the Senate investigation were said to have discussed what information they would give, previously were received.

Beach, a middle-aged, bespectacled man in a brown suit, said he ordered the destruction on his "own" responsibility although he had discussed it with O. E. Wasser, A. G. E., controller at Ithaca.

"I told him," Beach said, "that I had told my managers it was O. K. to get rid of their records because as far as I could see we were through with working on it (the utility bill)."

This was after the Senate investigation had been ordered.

HILL READ EVIDENCE

Previously, an Associated Gas and Electric official testified he discussed the prospects of replacing destroyed anti-utility bill telegrams at Warren, Pa., with Western Union officials, but he did not say if he got authority from superiors.

This witness, E. W. O'Brien of Erie, Pa., later declared Attorney Hill read in detail at the Wardman Park hotel here Wednesday night the evidence given at the first day's hearing before the lobby committee.

It told of the burning at Warren of records of hundreds of telegrams sent to Representative Driscoll (D) Pennsylvania, urging defeat of the public utility holding company bill.

Flatly contradictory evidence was given by R. P. Herron of Warren, a bond salesman, who had testified to using a city directory to get names for the telegrams.

He denied Hill had read the testimony to him or had discussed the case at all.

"I was fired," he said, "and went to bed."

Hill then was called to the stand.

HILL'S TESTIMONY

He said those present were O'Brien, G. K. Munsen, Washington attorney, and George Smith, another attorney. He said Herron went in and out of the room.

Hill said he had called Smith from Philadelphia and told him he was coming with Herron and O'Brien and Smith offered to get them hotel accomodations.

He added Smith had done some work for A. G. E., and Smith evidently had brought a package of committee testimony for him.

He said he read over part of the record while O'Brien and others were in and out of the room.

After telling of the midnight conference, Hill said he discussed briefly at breakfast the next morning the question of "restoring" the records at the Warren office.

JUST HAPPENED

He said he "just happened" to open the record of the first day's hearing at the point where Shew told of discussing the restoration with O'Brien.

Brassy Bug Bites Newton Worker

It might have been the heat, but—

When a Newton city employe found a four-inch insect, with a head like a wasp, a body like a snake, wings like a butterfly and a disposition like a midsummer Congressman, he took steps. Backing destroyed anti-utility bill telegrams at Warren, Pa., with Western Union officials, but he did not say if he got authority from superiors.

This witness, E. W. O'Brien of Erie, Pa., later declared Attorney Hill read in detail at the Wardman Park hotel here Wednesday night the evidence given at the first day's hearing before the lobby committee.

It told of the burning at Warren of records of hundreds of telegrams sent to Representative Driscoll (D) Pennsylvania, urging defeat of the public utility holding company bill.

Flatly contradictory evidence was given by R. P. Herron of Warren, a bond salesman, who had testified to using a city directory to get names for the telegrams.

He denied Hill had read the testimony to him or had discussed the case at all.

"I was fired," he said, "and went to bed."

Hill then was called to the stand.

HILL'S TESTIMONY

He said those present were O'Brien, G. K. Munsen, Washington attorney, and George Smith, another attorney. He said Herron went in and out of the room.

Hill said he had called Smith from Philadelphia and told him

CATHOLICS QUIT ULSTER HOMES

By Associated Press

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 19—The Irish News, official Nationalist paper, said today 300 Catholic families have lost their homes through disorders resulting from Orangemen's celebrations of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

Refugees from various parts of the city were taking shelter in huts erected at Macrory Park in West Belfast.

Hugh Fallon, 60, shot in the stomach yesterday in a new outbreak of the disorders at Portadown, near Belfast, died today, the eighth victim within a week.

PROBE ASKED In River Tragedy

Although the medical examiner ruled "accidental drowning," relatives of Lucien Aucilla, 24, of Blair place, Cambridge, today asked Cambridge police to investigate.

Aucilla's body was taken from Charles river, opposite Charles Street Jail Sunday. On the previous Friday, he, two other youths and three girls, all employed in a factory in Second street, Cambridge, had gone bathing.

Aucilla, according to the group, left them to get beer and then go to Magazine beach. He could not swim.

BLOODHOUNDS Hunt Slayer of Two

Middlesboro, Ky., July 19 (AP)—Thirty deputies with bloodhounds combed Kentucky mountains today for Green Allen Brooks, 77, wanted for killing two Virginia deputy sheriffs.

The officers, Arch Redmond, 45, and Robert Bailey, 58, went to Brooks' Virginia home, three miles from the Kentucky border, and arrested his son-in-law, Luther Poore, on an embezzlement warrant. Brooks fired on the officers with his rifle. Poore made no attempt to escape and was jailed later.

MORE BROKERS Face Indictment

Indictments against three, possibly five, more stock salesmen and brokers will be sought by Attorney-General Paul A. Dever.

His senior assistant, James J. Ronan today said the attorney-general's investigation of stock swindles would probably be completed in another week.

• 1200 TO LOSE

plains, singing "O Bella Napoli!" and suddenly seeing a row of lions, half a mile long, dashing at them.

Tse-tse flies, poisoned springs, lions; what else? Perhaps three-horned rhinoceroses and crocodiles. They have them in Ethiopia.

By the way, you may see photographs of Mussolini playing with lions, not quite full-grown, but big. Italians, you observe, are always doing something new.

Last Wednesday Italy recaptured the world's non-stop seaplane flight record. An Italian civilian, Mario Stoppani, and two Italian officers, with one 750-horse power engine, flew 3086 miles from Italy to British Somaliland, beating the world's record, held by a Frenchman, by 33 miles an hour average.

Joan Warner, young American whose dancing in costume shocked Paris, is fined three dollars and thirty-three cents. The judge said if she had been "entirely nude" he would have fined her twenty-five dollars.

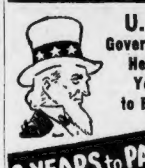

"But, the defendant wears a small veil as a fig leaf, and also employs a balloon. Therefore, only three dollars and thirty-three cents."

Three dollars and thirty-three cents was cheap; the young lady got at least $33,000 worth of free advertising, and here she gets a little more.

Dear little American girls that entertain restaurant crowds in London, dancing first on one foot, then on the other, bending over backward, bounding toward the sky, etc., have been told to go home. Britain's labor department, with its slogan, "Buy British," says little British girls also have two feet, can dance nicely, bend over as far as anybody, and need British jobs.

Nancy Lyon, one of a group of California girls, "platinum" and beautiful, said she would almost marry an Englishman, in order to stay. She made the "almost" emphatic.

CLUES to Abandoned INFANT

THREE LEADS FOLLOWED

Hyannis, July 19—Three separate angles were being followed today by State police in a grim determination to find the person who left the blue-eyed baby girl to die in the desolate Mashpee woods.

The blanket in which she was loosely wrapped was brought to New Bedford, where it is hoped it may be traced through the mill that made it.

Town records as far back as November in communities all through Southern Massachusetts were being studied for a possible clue to her identity.

And authorities began mapping out a program of house-to-house questioning in an effort to trace its parentage.

An aroused state police threw every energy into the search with the openly declared intention of "getting the one that did it."

One trooper said:

"It was meant to be murder. Only the merest chance prevented a murder.

"That child had been there between 24 and 28 hours. It had rained half that time. The blanket was soaked. Everything that crawls must have been at that baby during the night.

"When they brought the young one in she was as pitiful a sight as I've ever seen."

A nurse at Cape Cod Hospital said many persons have asked to take care of the baby, but that no one has admitted knowing anything about her antecedents.

It was the sharp ears of Mrs. Harry D. Kirkover, of Buffalo, N. Y., that turned a murder into a mere mystery.

Staying with her husband at Oyster Harbor Club, she had heard the child cry as they passed the section of uninhabited woods during an automobile drive.

She investigated, and found the baby.

The spot was about a mile in either direction from any kind of dwelling, approximately half way from Forestdale and Manhpee, at the edge of the Indian reservation.

Automobiles are usually not permitted to park in the section. Police said it was highly unlikely anyone else would have come along in time.

Freckles on Nose? Not These Sun-Shaded Quintuplets!

New Bootees, Dresses, Sweaters, Too, for Annette, Cecile

A vagrant breeze seems to have tipped her pretty parasol askew and left "Quin" Annette Dionne staring all surprised at the camera man. But she's a proud girl, nevertheless, to have such a grown-up sort of sunshade, underneath which she can loll at her ease in hot weather, just like society ladies in the picture books. It is only during a few months of the year that parasols are in season at Callander, Ont., but even if they're only an old Southern custom, Annette approves of 'em heartily. (World copyright, 1935, by NEA Service, Inc., and Boston American.)

O. K. Old Sol Blaze Away

All right, Old Sol! Blaze away, if you want to! "Quin" Cecile Dionne is well protected with this gay-hued parasol of hers, and she feels very much the young lady of quality as she poses in its grateful shade. It can't be that real hot weather has yet struck Callander, Ont., for Cecile is still wearing her fluffy, crocheted sweater

'PUT' Puts for HULAS

SOUTH SEAS HIS SOUL SALVE

By TONY MAYFAIR

New York, July 19—"So she took the fifty-dozen roses, and the three-dozen orchids . . . and that's the end of that."

It is A. P. ("Put") Humphries, youngest member of the New York Stock Exchange, telling of the latest dent in his battered heart on the terrace of the Westchester Bath Club.

"So what," said Bill Plankington—and his words echoed themselves in the silences of the tall Winnie Gardiner, handsomest playboy of the Westchester World . . .

"But I love her still," concluded young Mr. Humphries.

"Let's get away from it all," said young Mr. Gardiner—and that is why Messrs. Humphries, Plankington, Gardiner et al have announced plans to charter a yacht again to sail the South Seas, heartwhole and fancy free.

"It was the picture of Bryan Sheeda and the hula girls that did it," said Mr. Plankington yesterday, in explaining it all.

The girl who turned down Mr. Humphries was none other than Gertrude Neisen, the radio singer, who has enough roses to last out the season, Mr. Plankington didn't say, however, that his own heart was in bad shape over Kay Quonsly, a St. Louis debutante. Mr. Sheeda will join the voyagers at San Francisco, and the exploration is scheduled to start next Tuesday.

$10,000,000 Treasure Hunt In Ship Sunk 140 Years Ago

Even the thought of $10,000,000 is news!

So—whether or not Charles N. Colstead of Attleboro and his six Providence companions — making a mystic seven uncover the treasure trove of the sloop De Braak, sunk 140 years ago, they will have the fun of trying.

The old privateer has lain since 1789 in the shifting sands of Henlopen Cape in Delaware bay. And an old carved rail, dug up by a diver, is, according to Randolph McCracken, great-grandson of the De Braak's skipper, part of the De Braak.

Colstead and his party two months ago chartered the old pilot boat Liberty—which has a grand romantic story all her own—to carry their diving apparatus and other machinery to the Delaware hunting ground.

Fifty years ago a group of Philadelphians spent $25 a share in an attempt to raise the De Braak. The stock dropped to 10 cents a share, and then they dropped the stock.

Three years ago a Baltimore company tried to raise the sloop, but one of its ships caught fire, and another was wrecked off the cape. They quit.

Now Colstead and his Providence backers are waiting for equipment for the expedition, and in a month they'll have either $10,000,000—or else.

Astor Stork Is on Way

By International News Service

New York, July 19—Mrs. John Jacob Astor III was in Doctors Hospital today, and reports persisted that she is anticipating the birth of an heir.

The former Ellen "Tucky" French of Greater Boston and the young scion of the Astor line were married in a blaze of publicity June 30 of last year and since that time have sedulously avoided the common gaze.

Mrs. Astor was incommunicado at the hospital, where orders were issued that no information about her condition should be given.

'Doris Dukes' Arm for War On Roosevelt

Hongkong, July 19 (AP)—Hatless James Cromwell of New York brought his bride, the former Doris Duke, to Honckong today on their honeymoon, but said he must return to the United States in the fall to "do something" about the Roosevelt administration.

"We must be back by October," said the economist-bridegroom. "There are a lot of things needing our attention, particularly the Roosevelt regime.

"Something has to be done about it, and people with money are the only ones who can check the present collapse into chaos."

GANG, SALTS Clash in North End

A free-for-all between sailors and a gang of North End civilians in Scollay square sent police on a riot call today.

The cause of the fight could not be learned, and when the police arrived the gang had scattered. The sailors, with ranks depleted by several casualties, were still there.

Six sailors had been floored in the melee in which fists and other missiles were used.

MAYOR O'BRIEN Condition Better

Continued improvement was noted last night and this morning in the condition of Mayor James M. O'Brien of Revere at Whidden Memorial Hospital, Everett. Mayor O'Brien is recovering from a vicious attack, allegedly inflicted by Bob Janse, former New England middleweight boxing champion.

Rows Abroad Lure Tinkham

By Associated Press

Washington, July 19—When the long debates are over and Congress adjourns, Representative George Holden Tinkham, Boston's blackbearded member of Congress, likes to listen to more debates.

He said today that when the sessions are ended on Capitol Hill, he liked nothing better than to take swings around the world, dropping in on sessions of foreign parliaments, Reichstags and Diets.

"One thing I have learned on these trips," he declared, "is to think more highly of the American Congress."

In London, he has found more inattention in the House of Commons than he finds in Washington, and in Paris there is more noise than in London and Washington put together.

Flaming Fuel Bathes Boy

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 19 — Michael Pasquale, newsboy, passed an automobile just as the driver was pouring gasoline into the carburetor. Heat from the motor ignited the fumes and the motorist hurled the flaming fuel can away from him.

It struck Michael and in an instant he was enveloped in flames. As horror-stricken pedestrians watched, a policeman seized a fire extinguisher from a passing bus, put out the flames and took the boy in a hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

RELIEF JOBS SPEEDED BY HOPKINS

By Associated Press

Washington, July 19—Harry L. Hopkins was busy today trying to fulfill his promise that "a substantial number" will be given work relief jobs before this month is up.

Yesterday Hopkins said 403,000 persons had found work in the present four billion dollar program intended to lift 3,500,000 from dole to jobs.

These included 15,000 on rivers and harbors and 388,000 in the civilian conservation corps.

Hopkins predicted all federal direct relief can end November 1, when, he said, states and cities must assume support of an estimated 4,000,000 persons.

At the same time a White House conference that included Secretaries Perkins and Morgenthau and Frank C. Walker, head of the information and applications for the present work relief program, discussed next year's program.

Officials said the National Resources Board is planning projects and the Federal Government will continue its policy of jobs instead of dole.

Secretary Perkins said she believed unemployment will drop during the coming year, but with other conferees declined an estimate on the cost of next year's program.

Chairman Buchanan (D., Tex.), of the House appropriations committee, recently mentioned three billion dollars as a probable figure.

RELIEF COSTS TOP 10 BILLION

By Associated Press

Washington, July 19—Expenditures for "recovery and relief" since July 1, 1933, together with outlays prior to that on account of the Reconstruction Corporation and for capital stock of Federal Land Banks, have exceeded ten thousand million dollars.

The Treasury's daily statement today showed expenditures of about $254,000,000 for "recovery and relief" in the current fiscal year had boosted the total above the ten-billion mark.

Original appropriations and allocations for such purposes have been in excess of eighteen thousand million dollars since they began but more than eight thousand millions of this was listed as "unexpended."

Of the unexpended total nearly two thousand million dollars was reported by the RFC.

CLOSING BARS U. S. STUDENTS

By Associated Press

The explanation given the collegians in a last-minute decision was that the teaching staff was urgently needed elsewhere.

One hundred students already had arrived from the United States expressly to attend the school and 100 more are expected to arrive in a few days.

BONUS PROSPECTS BRIGHT, PATMAN TELLS VETERANS

By JAMES F. McENANEY

New Haven, July 19—Prospects for passage of the bonus were never brighter than the present, Congressman Wright Patman, author of the vetoed bonus bill, told a wildly cheering assemblage of disabled American veterans at their 15th annual national convention today.

Congressman Patman said:

"Although I was disappointed with the President's veto, I have been working with him in ironing out disabled veterans legislation, and with my whole heart and soul I believe that the war-disabled and their dependents who are entitled to receive compensation haven't a better friend in the world than Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Patman termed the bonus "an honest and just debt confessed by Congress."

"The opinion in the country is almost unanimous for the payment of this legislation," he added.

Patman denied that the bonus legislation he sponsored was inflationary.

"The truth is," he said, "I'm opposed to inflation. The bill we have is not inflationary. It will not put a single additional dollar in circulation. It will only push $2,000,000,000 to the veterans and withdraw $2,000,000,000 from the Federal Reserve banks."

Patman told the delegates he was ready to support any bonus measure saying:

"I can't get the boys their money one way, the best way, I'm going to yield to get the boys their money in another way."

Patman asserted it was the duty of the government "to deal generously with all war injured and their dependents."

"We believe," he said, "in adequate care and adequate compensation."

Earlier in the session, the veterans passed a resolution demanding immediate payment of the bonus.

Three members of the organization will go to Washington to carry the demand to President Roosevelt.

Congressman Patman told delegates today:

"The bonus question is not dead, as many believe. I can tell you members that before this session of Congress is over it will pass the bonus bill."

PRESIDENT'S WIRE

This is the first time the Disabled American Veterans have demanded cash payment in settlement of the bonus.

The veterans were assured in a message directly from the President that "there never can be any question but that they should be adequately compensated.

That compensation, the President wrote to National Commander Volney P. Mooney, should be given, not only to meet the debt of a grateful nation to the veterans, but also to make up for their loss in earning power in the post-war structure.

The President's utterance was construed in veterans' circles here as a hint that he might recede from his opposition to the bonus.

President Roosevelt's message was received with cheers, especially after Thomas Kirby, national legislative chairman of the day, had warned the convention of coming economies.

Chairman Kirby explained that his address was not intended to be disheartening, but only a reminder that "conservatism rather than radicalism should prevail in the legislative program" adopted by the convention.

URGES CHANGES

This action is embodied in the 15-point program of changes in veteran laws, to be recommended by the legislative committee. The committee urged:

"All requests for benefits should be conservative, rather than radical, in view of the Washington policy for federal retrenchment."

Riot Spreads in Paris

Paris, July 19—Flying squads of police smashed into demonstrations in the Place de L'Opera tonight and a number of men were seen struck down.

Several thousand demonstrators, many with clenched fists raised in Communist salutes, had swarmed into the Place de L'Opera shouting:

"Laval resign!"

The fighting became general all around the opera as police tried to stop a demonstration against salary and pension cuts.

KNIFE CLUE IN MULLEN CASE

Virtually clearing two South End women of suspicion in the alleged slaying of T. Frank Mullen, Ridge Tech teacher, police today bent their efforts in an analysis of a thin-bladed knife found in Newbury street near the spot where one woman was arrested two days ago for larceny.

Police hope the knife may furnish them with some clue in the alleged slaying.

Tong Killer Hanged

Walla Walla, Wash, July 19 (AP)—Hong Yick, 44, Seattle Chinese tong watchman, was hanged at the state penitentiary here early today for the hammer slaying last December of Lee Wing Quen, 28, member of a rival tong.

BATTLES LIVE WIRE

Forester Saved in Tree Top

A three-minute battle for his life was waged 25 feet above the ground in Winthrop today by Robert E. Vaughan, 22, of Randolph. He fought to free himself from a wire carrying 2300 volts of electricity.

Vaughan, employed by the New England Forestry Service, was saved by a fellow worker, Jerry Djordy of Newburyport, who risked his own life to climb a tree and, with a hack saw, cut the wire.

The battle against death and the daring rescue was witnessed by more than a score of persons living in Pauline street, Winthrop.

Vaughan was cutting dead branches from a tree when his hand struck a bare wire.

Attempting to free himself, he thrashed about in the branches, attracting the attention of Djordy, who climbed a tree and began sawing at the wire. Vaughan, by this time unconscious, hung suspended.

Nearly blinded by the sputtering flashes as the saw came in contact with the wire Djordy kept at it until the line parted.

He then managed to catch Vaughan by the belt and hold him until an unidentified spectator aided in bringing him to the ground.

Dr. G. Lynde Gately administered first aid, assisted by firemen with an inhalator.

REDS FEAR LABOR QUOTAS

PEASANTS FIGHT FOOD TAX LEADING TO STARVATION

By FRED E. BEAL

Once Fred E. Beal was a "100 per cent Communist." He was an official of radical textile workers' unions and was Communist party organizer in America.

A native of Lawrence, he led the Communist element in big textile strikes in that city and in others.

Then Beal, a fugitive from justice in America, fled to Russia. Today having learned his lesson, he details more of his experiences in Soviet Russia.

ARTICLE ELEVEN

The Stalin dictatorship frowned on any attempts on the part of even foreign Communists to see what was going on in the country. When I organized an expedition at Kharkov for some members of the foreign colony to go out into the villages, the G. P. U. immediately quashed the idea.

One fall day, a Russian factory worker and I started on a long hike out into the countryside. We left early in the morning of our rest day and arrived back home very late at night. I will call my friend Maxim. I don't want to get him into trouble with his masters.

"Fancy" Farms for Tourists

The things we saw are not what the visitors to Russia sees. The tourists would see only the special farms. One of these is the G. P. U. Commune, located in the Kharkov district. It is called the "Red Star."

The peasants working on this farm are hand-picked members of the Communist party and the Young Communist League. They are well-fed and housed. The cows are contented and the tractors, under the management of strapping young shock troopers, actually plow the fields. But 95 per cent of the collectives and state farms are radically different from this.

Maxim and I hiked south from our place, crossing the ravine in back of the tractor plant town, where the beggars stewed up fish bones and we passed the new laundry beyond, the new laundry which never seemed to be in running order.

After some miles of walking, we came upon two men and a woman working in a field. We knew they were Dopr (Prisoners' Corps) workers, but we wanted them to tell us.

At first the woman, whose uncovered legs were all broken out with boils and scabby places, started to run. One of the men called her back, saying that it was an "inostranetz" (foreigner).

"Why did you run?" Maxim asked.

"I was afraid the police had come to shoot me," she answered.

"Why should they shoot you?"

"Because they took my husband and my son. They killed them, I'm sure and now they want to kill me." The woman cried and became hysterical. With this she fell heaving to the ground, pounding and flaying it with her fists.

The man who called her back explained her case to us. The father and son had been shipped to some unknown place for failure to make the quota. The quota is the tax in kind set by the Soviet commissars. It had to be met—or else!

The man told us the story of his own past. He was a cabinet maker. During the war he was captured by the Germans and put to work at his trade. Considering conditions in Germany at the time he was making a comfortable living. Then the Bolshevik revolution broke out in Russia. As he was a Socialist he went back to his native land to help build Socialism.

He followed the leadership of Lenin because Lenin had promised land to the peasants. He had got a small bit of land and had worked hard and was beginning to prosper.

Four Years' Slavery for Tardy Tax

A year and a half ago he had been short four bushels of wheat and three of potatoes. They sentenced him to forced labor, one year for each bushel short of the requird tax! Now he was a convict.

"There seems to be no one watching you, why don't you run away?" I asked.

"What for . . . where will I go? Here I get some bread every day and all the tomatoes I can steal. If I run away I'll starve."

I thought of the Sokolniki prison and that other show-place, Bolshevo, near Moscow, where the prisoners never ran away. And how the Bolsheviks boasted of it! How the tourists had marveled at the supposed model Soviet penal system!

"What else do you get to eat?" asked Maxim of the prisoner.

"Nothing . . . nothing else at all, other than a pound and a quarter of bread a day. If we walked eight miles we could get borsch (soup) with sun-flower seed oil on top. But we would rather steal tomatoes. Want one?"

He took from his faded blouse three or four small tomatoes and offered them on the palm of his hand. We hesitated.

"Please take one, it is all I can offer you."

We did and our cabinet maker and his two prison comrades looked happy. In return we gave them a box of matches.

We went on and saw many others like these working the field in a dazed and feeble way. This was a state farm (Sovhoz) and the majority of the peasants were prisoners. All were in a bad condition, weak and undernourished.

Miles further, we came to a collective farm.

We went on to the houses, through a wide field of weeds and tomatoes. The weeds were higher than the tomatoes and absorbing all the nourishment from the ground. The tomatoes were sickly and small. A woman sat close by under the shade of a tree.

"Comrade, why don't some of you get out and pull the weeds? They are choking the tomatoes," I said.

"What for?" she answered us. "We had some nice tomatoes last year and the government came and took them all away from us. The same with the potatoes and everything else we raised. We had nothing to live on through the winter. Citizen, do you think I can pull all those weeds?

"There were two thousand of us here once. Now there are only about one hundred left, and God knows what will happen to the rest of us this winter!"

"And where are the rest?"

"They died or ran away. Now, there are only a few children and one sick cow."

(More revelations of the oppression of the Soviet workers tomorrow.)

Mermen Find Nose Awning Great Idea

By Associated Press

Rochester, N. Y., July 19—His best girl told Lifeguard Derwood Brough that he would have to do something about his sunburned nose, or else . . .

So Brough startled bathers at one of Rochester's municipal beaches on Lake Ontario by wearing a nose awning. Shapes of soft leather like a miniature horse's blinder, it was taped to the bridge of his proboscis.

Other guards and bathers laughed at first. Now they are taking up the idea.

"The nose is very funny," mused Chief Guard Bill Cox. "The rest of the body takes on a nice tan, but the nose never does anything but turn very red."

2-GUN KILLERS' PRINTS FOUND

Chicago, July 19—The police discovered today that the slayers of "Two-Gun" Louie Alterie left their "signatures" behind them.

"Clear fingerprints" were found on the automatic .12 guage shotgun Alterie's assassins abandoned after the gangster's killing, Captain Gregory Moran of the Town Hall police disclosed.

The prints were rushed to the detective bureau of identification. Others were found on a green suitcase trunk in the first floor apartment from which the killers fired upon Alterie when the one-time "cannon" of Dion O'Banion's gang stepped from his hotel yesterday morning.

Fall Kills Child

Providence, R. I., July 19 (AP)—Christine Sherbloom, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sherbloom, died today as the result of a fall yesterday from a second floor window in her home.

O'CONOR MAID LINKS WIFE, SALESLADY

Into the troubled life of the O'Conors of Newton Center a traveling salesiady was injected today during the hearing on a divorce suit brought by Mrs. Lucy Beatrice O'Conor of Grant avenue.

The traveling salesiady, it was admitted by Miss Amelia Trjohen, 42-year-old maid in the household, slept with Mrs. O'Conor, while the husband, Charles T. O'Conor, was relegated to a separate bedroom.

Under cross-examination, during which she sometimes shouted back replies to the husband's attorney, the maid admitted that the two women had occupied the same bed even on trips with the entire family.

DENIES BATTLE

A denial by the maid, however, was that Mrs. O'Conor and the salesiady, Miss Lee Warner, had engaged in a battle in the Hotel Stevens, Chicago, during the 1933 World Fair, and had pounded on opposite sides of the bedroom door.

Miss Warner, the maid revealed, was a traveling salesiady with whom Mrs. O'Conor became associated when the latter was on the road selling a special brand of cigarettes.

During her tenure as maid, Miss Trjohen said, Miss Lee was a visitor at the O'Conor home about twice a week and usually slept with Mrs. O'Conor.

Q—When you saw them in bed together, did you observe anything unusual about their conduct? A—No sir.

Q—Nothing attracted your attention to them? A—No, sir.

Q—Were you present in the Newton home when Mrs. O'Conor and Miss Warner ran into the street in their nightgowns? A—I never heard of it.

Q—You say you never heard they had a quarrel one night in their bedroom and that they stood on each sire of the door, yelling and shouting, and then ran into the street? A—That isn't true.

TROUBLE AT HOTEL

Q—Did you go to Chicago in 1933? A—Yes.

It was brought out that the family, including Mr. and Mrs. O'Conor, the maid, the children and Miss Warner had gone to the World's Fair.

Q—Was there some trouble at the Stevens Hotel? A—That is a matter of opinion as to what you call trouble.

Q—Well, was there any trouble between Mrs. O'Conor and Lee? A—No, sir.

Q—Didn't you know about Lee complaining that she wasn't given enough spending money? A—No.

Q—Did you go to Buffalo? A—Yes.

Q—Was there trouble there? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Was there a quarrel between Lee and Mrs. O'Conor? A—No, sir.

Q—Did Mrs. O'Conor and Lee stay in the same room? A—Yes, sir.

Q—During the daytime? A—No, sir.

Q—Just at night? A—Yes.

Q—Did Mrs. O'Conor and Lee keep the same room at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago? A—Yes.

Q—At the hotel in Buffalo? A—Yes.

Q—And Mr. O'Conor slept alone in another room? A—Yes.

BUCKLEY O. K.'S RITCHIE'S RAP

By Associated Press

Baltimore, July 19—The wrath of the Irish swirled around the head of former Governor Albert C. Ritchie today after his most recent assault on the New Deal.

The banquet meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, in convention here, became an uproar last night as Ritchie asserted in an address the New Deal "has not worked."

One person alone of those who voiced their opinions commended Ritchie in what was regarded as his notice he would be amenable to the leadership of conservative Democrats.

That one was Thomas H. Buckley, State Auditor of Massachusetts and national editor of the Hibernian, who gripped the former Maryland Governor's hand and said:

"We in Massachusetts know what the administration is. It has treated our state scandalously in the matter of relief funds."

But representative Martin L. Sweeney (D.) Ohio, former national president of the Hibernians; George Riley, California state president, and George W. Harkins, also of California, lined up against Ritchie.

Ritchie had criticized governmental expenditures, urged a balanced budget, a "sound and stable currency" and called for adherence to the constitution.

WINS POST AS CITY HOSPITAL HEAD

New head of the Boston City Hospital is Dr. James W. Manary, former assistant superintendent.

Dr. James W. Manary today was elected by the trustees to be superintendent of Boston City Hospital, succeeding the late Dr. John J. Dowling.

The post is one of the most important of its kind in the world. The salary is $6,000.

Hospital attaches acclaimed the choice.

Dr. Manary has been acting director of the hospital for several months, and a member of the staff since March 2, 1908. He became director of the out-patient division on May 29, 1925.

His home is at 74 Wellington Hill street, Dorchester.

Although Dr. Manary was conceded to be the choice of the hospital trustees, his election today was a surprise in view of Mayor Mansfield's recent statement that the post might not be filled for two months.

While his election is for the unexpired annual term of Dr. Dowling, which ends in May, re-election is traditional.

30 Hurt in Strike Riot

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 19 (AP)—More than 30 persons were injured, two seriously, as violence flared at the John Morrell packing plant where union workmen went on strike this morning.

'PESKY' DRUNK CHARGES JAIL MINISTER

Brookline court today disposed of "pesky charges" against an Ohio minister by fining him $15 on a charge of being drunk and sentencing him to two months in jail on a charge of drunken driving.

Rev. Ralph J. Westlake, 29, Liberal Church pastor, was the recipient. He appealed, and bail was set at $200.

The minister was arrested in Brookline a month ago, paying a $20 minimum fine for drunken driving. A half hour after his release he was arrested again for a second offense.

Posting a bankbook showing $1600 in deposits as bail, he defaulted, and wrote the court asking that the "pesky charges" be dropped and whatever fine was decided upon be deducted from his savings.

Yesterday he was brought back from Auburn, N. Y., to learn that a second offense of drunken driving in this state carries a mandatory jail sentence.

He admitted having three or four glasses of beer following his first appearance in court, but denied he was drunk when arrested the second time.

POLICE HALT Girls' Thrill Trip

Two Roxbury girls, dressed as boys, journeyed home today, their ears for going places bluntly squelched in Cranston, R. I.

They are Miss Betty McIsaac, 18, of Cedric street, and Miss Lillian Driscoll, 17, of Magazine street.

Clad in boys' clothing, they were discovered asleep beside the New York Post Road in Cranston.

A truck driver saw them and notified the police.

The girls told Cranston police they "were just going places for the thrill of adventure."

Miss McIsaac is well known in her neighborhood as a girl athlete. She plays with a girls' baseball team and is a professional basketball player.

BOYISH GARB FAILS AS HITCH-HIKE DISGUISE!

On her way back home today and subject to parental discipline is Betty McIsaac, 18, of Cedric street, Roxbury, picked up by Cranston, R. I. police, who halted her and her chum, Lillian Driscoll, 17, of Roxbury, as they were attempting to hitch-hike to New York, dressed in boys' clothing.

Dapper Holdups Get $1200

Oberlin, O., July 19 (INS)—A gang of three well-dressed gunmen today staged a raid on the Oberlin College treasurer's office here and escaped with $1200 in cash after menacing four clerks, three of them girls.

Wales Likes It, But Nudity Prompts Dance Girl Ban

By International News Service

London, July 19—Stage nudity, of a type seemingly enjoyed by the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Kent but frowned upon by King George and Queen Mary, was reported a contributing factor today in the Labor Ministry's order banning two troupes of American showgirls appearing in smart London hotels.

The older elements in Britain's royal family were reported shocked over the use of West End establishments for exhibition of epidermis despite the fact the Prince and his younger, newly-married brother have been frequent attendants.

The girls themselves scoffed at the nudity charges, but an eyewitness investigation disclosed at least one dance number called "beautiful flowers" in which the girls were naked from the waist up but screened from the waist down.

Eunice Coleman of Sarasota, Fla., one of the chorines in the Grosvenor House show, declared emphatically there were no "nudist camp numbers."

"We hardly show our ankles," she said. "Our stuff is as mild as doughnuts compared to Broadway or Hollywood. As a matter of fact, our performance is no worse than the international folk dancing festival now under way here."

Regarding the theory the labor ministry's ban resulted from protests by unemployed English chorines against unfair competition from America, fair Eunice said:

"I think English girls dance ten times as well as we do but they don't seem to put up as good an appearance. Anyway, the whole thing isn't fair. We pay British income tax and spend every cent we make right in this country."

Felix Ferry, who stages the Grosvenor House revue, quoted the Prince of Wales as saying:

"I like this show."

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR JANITOR'S LEGACY

By Universal Service.

New York, July 19—Attorneys for Abraham Starr, humble East Side janitor and ironworker, began a desperate search for the $17,000,000 fortune reportedly left by his late uncle, Harry Lozack, a South African gold-and-diamond miner.

Starr and his 21 children and grandchildren, dazed by the onrush of chiselers, salesmen, beggars, borrowers and bill-collectors, have received no proof that the fortune actually existed.

Mrs. Leah Starr, the janitor's wife, even went so far as to announce:

"It's all a mistake. We got a telegram saying it's all a mistake. Now go away and leave us alone."

Other members of the family, however, explained that Mrs. Starr was "upset by the excitement", and that while no proof of the existence of the fortune had been received, neither had they any proof that it didn't exist.

Starr, as one of five sons of Lozack's only sister, should inherit, according to advices from Montreal, between $1,000,000 and $8,000,000 of the estate.

BEACH SAFETY PETITION FILED

The Metropolitan District Commission today received petitions with more than 2000 signatures from parents for additional safety measures at the new Spring street beach in West Roxbury.

Petitions sponsored by the Samoset Canoe Club, Brook Farm Civic Association and the Centre Spring Civic Associati-- have been signed by residents of West Roxbury, Roslindale and Dedham.

Weekly meetings were held by the organizations to protest unsafe conditions at the beach.

Three of the five demands made by users of the beach were granted a week ago.

They included buoyed guard lines to restrict the bathing area, a new life boat and "No Swimming" signs, which were posted on the Dedham side of the river.

The District Commission has promised to add two more qualified life guards to teach youngsters to swim.

Dedication of the beach will be held on August 4.

"THEY DON'T GET YOUR WIND" ATHLETES SAY

JAMES BAUSCH—is Olympic Decathlon Champion he's earned the title of "world's greatest all-around athlete"! He says: "I've been a Camel smoker for years. Camels are so mild they don't get my wind or cut down my speed and endurance. And Camel is a better-tasting cigarette. Never flat and insipid; never harsh and irritating; always rich, smooth, and mellow. Camels must be made from costlier tobaccos!"

RIP COLLINS, home-run king of the world-champion St. Louis Cardinals. "Here's the best proof I know that Camels are mild," Rip says. "I can smoke them steadily, and they never get my wind or upset my nerves."

JENNIE ROONEY, famous circus aerialist, says: "I have to guard my wind. It means a lot to my peace of mind that Camels, being so mild, do not upset my nerves or get my wind. And Camels never give me any throat irritation.

YOU'LL LIKE THEIR MILDNESS TOO!

THE CHAMPIONS APPROVE Camel's mildness. Healthy nerves—physical fitness—sound wind—help to make life more enjoyable for you, too. Enjoy Camel's mildness—smoke all you wish! For athletes have proved that Camels don't get their wind ...or jangle their nerves.

J. A. BROOKS, '32 and '33 All American Lacrosse Team: "I smoke the athletes' cigarette—Camels—and have for 5 years. No matter how many I smoke, Camels never upset my nerves or get my wind. That's real mildness!"

BRUCE BARNES, the tennis champion, comments: "Camels are so mild! They never cut my wind—and I smoke a lot, too. Their flavor? Always rich and good. And when I'm tired out, smoking a Camel eases the strain."

WILLIE MACFARLANE, former U. S. Open Champion, adds: "You hear a lot about mildness. Camels are so mild that I can smoke them steadily, and they don't get my wind or make my nerves jittery. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'"

SO MILD YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT!

Camels COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

● Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS —Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

AFRICA MAKES SECRET PLANS FOR WAR

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Addis Ababa, July 19—Widespread military preparations for th general mobilization order which is believed imminent were reported throughout Ethiopia today, following Emperor Haile Selassie's speech in which he warned his subjects that it was better to die free than to live conquered.

Specific details of the military step were not available in the capital, but a new note of determination was seen in the attitude of the general public, following the Emperor's intimation that war with Italy was almost inevitable.

Fourteen thousand persons already have joined the new patriotic association, Amour Pour La Patrie —"Love of Country"—formed at last night's big meeting of adherents to the Emperor's plea for unity.

Unconfirmed reports of a new incident on the northern frontier were received but the foreign ministry was unable to gain a certified report on the details on what may have happened.

The Emperor's firm declaration that Ethiopia would never accept a mandate or protectorate of any nature was enthusiastically received by the people and seemed effectively to dispose of reports abroad that such a plan to avert war was under consideration.

Addis Ababa was quiet this morning. The Emperor's assurance that resident foreigners were in no danger and the measures already taken for their security had a quieting effect, although Italians continued to stream out from the capital.

Americans Warned Against Recruiting

Copyright, 1935, International News Service

Washington, July 19—The State Department is definitely opposed to American citizens enlisting in the armies of either Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia or Italy.

Furthermore, any American who enlists in this country or anyone who seeks to recruit volunteers in this country for either Ethiopia or Italy is liable to three years' imprisonment and a $1000 fine.

Italy Sees War Certain After Selassie's Plea

Rome, July 19—Italian unofficial circles asserted today that Emperor Haile Selassie's exhortation to his people to "fight to the last man" rendered certain an armed settlement of Italy's dispute with Ethiopia.

These sources interpreted the address as an indication of the emperor's determination not to yield to Italian demands. No official reaction could be obtained, however.

JOURNALISTS Here From South

One hundred North Carolina newspapermen came to Boston today to do nothing but see the sights.

As part of the 63d annual convention of the North Carolina Press Association, they followed Paul Revere's route from Boston to Lexington and Concord. A luncheon stop at Wayside Inn in South Sudbury and an inspection of Harvard University were also on the itinerary.

Nice Day for Mittens, These Girls Find!

It may be hot today where you are, but Evelyn Currie, Katherine O'Connor and Barbara Nichols find it not only cool but actually frosty here in the Commercial wharf plant of the Metropolitan Ice Company. They're even wearing mittens to keep their fingers from being chilled as they enjoy this artificial Arctic climate during their lunch time leisure. 'DEAD PAN' LOVE SCENE

Acrobatic Charge Hurled

Los Angeles, July 19—The owl-faced expression of Buster Keaton was much in order today as he found himself the center of a possible court battle between two women.

Never likened to a dashing Don Juan, the "dead pan" screen comedian was being sued for divorce by his wife, Mae Elizabeth, who aimed a love theft suit at the wealthy Mrs. Leah Clampitt Sewell and demanded $200,000 for affections allegedly lost.

Pre-courtroom statements shaped up like this:

Mrs. Keaton—She stole my husband's love.

Buster Keaton—Why, I hardly know Mrs. Sewell.

Mrs. Sewell—I don't know anything about it—I was asleep.

Elaborating on her charges, the comedy star's wife said she found her husband and the mutchly sued and suing Mrs. Sewell together in a Santa Barbara hotel last July 4.

Keaton termed the charges "silly as well as amusing," and added, "If a divorce is what she wants, then I want one, too."

"It was all just a 'gag,'" echoed Mrs. Sewall, describing Keaton as a boudoir acrobat, who, "just kidding, made a running jump and landed on my bed by me just as his wife walked in. I was asleep."

Ann Howard Guest of Honor At Manchester Luncheon

By BETTY ALDEN

LIMPID SENTENCES from the wilted pages of our summer note book . . . The fact that the weather prophets predict continued fair and warmer should not disturb Ann Howard, for the cool garden of her parents' estate at Smith's Point, Manchester, where she had a large luncheon party today, overlooks the ocean and gets the full benefit of every idle breeze . . . This was not Ann's presentation party, for that important event will be celebrated early in October at a dance at the Myopia Hunt Club . . . It was just an informal gathering of a bevy of her sister debs and some of last year's buds, who, like Ann, preferred to make their formal bow to society on the shore before they moved back to town for the winter . . .

ANN HOWARD

Miss Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kenneth Howard, wore a simple dress of apple green and white print for today's party . . . Luncheon was served at small tables set in the garden and after the party, some of the girls attended the tennis matches, while others went swimming . . .

• • •

Debs Guests

DEBS FROM DUBLIN, Peterboro, the South Shore, Groton, and as far north as the tip of Cape Ann, were included on the guest list . . . In fact, practically all of Miss Howard's sister debs, except those who are abroad, have been invited . . .

Although she has no house guests of her own, Miss Howard will be greeted by several girls from out of town who are visiting on the North Shore . . . Frances Fabyan will be accompanied by Margaret Loose of Bronxville, New York, who is visiting her, and both Winifred Palmer and Peggy Seyburn of Grosse Point, Michigan, were there . . .

Miss Howard is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Gaston and the late Colonel Gaston, and has very prominent family connections . . . She is a niece of Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell and a grandniece of Mr. and Mrs. H. De Forest Lockwood . . . The Howards' town house is on Marlborough street . . .

• • •

It would be fun to be in Ireland on August 6 to see all the Bostonians at the Dublin Horse Show . . . As in former years, an air of gayety and excitement will hold Dublin in its grasp, but the advance indications are that the gallery will be far more splendiferous and social than its predecessors have been . . . The latest Bostonians to join the exodus for the British Isles are Mrs. Francis W. Bird of East Walpole and her son, Francis, who are sailing tomorrow . . .

• • •

Visiting the Hallowells

TO ESCAPE THE HEAT in the suburbs of New York, Eleanor Hallowell Lapsley and her infant child have come back home to spend the rest of the summer with the Hallowells at Pocasset . . . Howard will be here for long week-end vacations with his wife and new-born heir . . .

• • •

Though conducting themselves in the simplest fashion, and according to the most staid ecclesiastical tradition, members of the large family flock of Bishop Lawrence of Milton, are often in the news . . . Not very long ago he officiated at the marriage of his cousin, the former Dorothy Lawrence, who was one-time president of the Junior League . . . and almost every annual list of debutantes includes at least one of his granddaughters or nieces . . .

This year the official representative of the Lawrence family on the deb list is the bishop's granddaughter, Hester Lansing Reed, whose mother was Ruth Lawrence . . . Hester's father is Lansing Reed, a very prominent New York lawyer, and with her good looks and family background she has just about all a girl needs to assure her impeccable social position . . . She has quite a few cousins in Boston who will undoubtedly see to it that she is introduced to Beacon Hill society as well as to the fashionables of Mayfair, where the Reeds live . . .

• • •

Nancy Whitney Among New Debs

HOPE BLANCHARD, who came out in Boston last winter, will have the fun of taking her cousin Nancy Whitney under her wing this year to teach her a few of the tricks of the trade . . . Nancy is the daughter of the enormously well-to-do and very popular, Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, and niece of Mrs. Archibald Blanchard of Beacon street . . . The Whitneys' yacht often rides at anchor off Nahant, while its master visits the Blanchards . . .

• • •

Another deb whose parents hailed from Boston is Rose Weld, daughter of the Philip Welds of New York . . . Her mother was Katherine Saltonstall and like most good Bostonians, the whole flock of Welds comes back in the summer time to join the family fold at the shore . . . They are in Wareham with Mrs. Stephen Weld . . . Rose's sister, Mary, is Mrs. Samuel H. Wolcott, Jr., and on her maternal side she is a niece of Mrs. George Von L. Meyer, Jr., and Mrs. William C. Potter . . .

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

"From the evidence which has been collected in our system of study, we can safely say that never before have the astrologers had a better chance to establish a more satisfactory foundation for their work than they have with the birth dates of the five Dionne quintuplets.

"This year 1935 this planet, the earth, will pass through the negative radiation of the planet Saturn, forcing greater strains upon the human structure.

"We find that all persons born in the last few days of February, May, August and November of any year will have the opportunity to pass through these same negative rays from the planet Saturn and they will feel the effect of the downward pull which the five Dionne Quins will encounter during their illness in September of 1935.

Robert E. Rogers

"For the benefit of all humanity will you write and inform us just how you felt while passing through these negative rays from the planet Saturn from August 24 to September 30? This is the period when the Dionne Quins will become ill."

This is the nucleus of the prophecy which has been kindly sent to me (and doubtless to other publicists as well) by Miss Agnes S. Hanson, director of what she calls "the smallest college in the world," the School for a Better Understanding of Life, at 780 Beacon street, Boston.

Beyond Me!

And this nucleus is only one page of a pretty formidable document, full of astrology, mathematics, psychology, metaphysics and prophecy, most of which, I am ashamed to say, is beyond my comprehension and outside my interests.

The document sketches out a new theory of education, "to teach people to invent new ideas and to humanize the solar system. For people must find a way to bring the human structure into closer relation with Nature's demands; either that, or watch their children pay the penalty of their own ignorance."

If these prophecies by Miss Hanson's system do not work out 100 per cent right, the lady adds, then "the astrologers must close the doors on their old system or invent a new one.

"I am well aware that advance thoughts hold no value for the period in which they are expressed; but for future reference I would like to have my records show that our work was offered at this date to prove the theory within these pages."

So far, and a great deal more, from Miss Hanson. A part of her plans for the Smallest College in the World is to choose a champion to uphold a number of theses originated by herself, selected by the Department of Education at Washington and judged by Professor Albert Einstein.

And so Transcendentalism returns to Boston after a century of materialism.

I print the above, not only because Miss Hanson seems to have all the earmarks of a sincere metaphysical enthusiast, willing to put her cards on the table, but also because I have noticed that any reference to astrological prophecy is sure to arouse wide interest and controversy.

Some few years ago I remember being flooded with letters about a column dealing with astrology, and even today an occasional letter on the subject is not unexpected.

Who Can Tell?

Besides, who can tell what may happen when an enthusiast with a metaphysical formula begins to preach? Who would have expected the difficult and non-realistic teachings of Mary Baker G. Eddy to have flowered into power and wealth as they have?

Who would have expected the fantasies of the Book of Mormon to have founded a great state?

Even Spiritualism, though in its decline today, has had a curiously tenacious hold on the minority to whom it appeals.

The list of people who have broken with traditional materialistic thought and gone straveging after new truth and found followers, often by the multitudes, is almost endless.

It really isn't safe to laugh at people like Miss Agnes S. Hanson with her program for making over education and psychology by a proper understanding of planetary lore.

But since the lady offers us a specific prophecy with reasonably specific dates, all we need to do for the present is to lie back and let the newspapers of latter August and early September vindicate the School for the Better Understanding of Life.

Remember the lad in New York, who predicted the recent seismological and volcanic disturbances in the Far East? He at least appeared to have something on the ball.

Remember Mark Twain's tale in "Captain Stormfield's Visit to Heaven," of the obscure Tennessee cobbler who was really the greatest poet in the world, although nobody knew it or him?

Mary Brian Goes to London for Six-Month Stage and Screen Engagement

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, July 19—With scarcely half a day's notice, Mary Brian was packed and on her way to London to remain six months. She sails Saturday on the Ile de France. Two cables arrived almost simultaneously, one from "Charlot's Revue" and one from the Alexander Korda corporation.

Mary accepted both offers and will spend the first three months of her time on the London stage in the famous "Revue" and the rest of the time with the Korda Company, making a picture for Alexander Korda.

The British companies are relentless in their endeavor to sign up all the available Hollywood talent. Scouts are here from every British film company and now the English stage is having its turn borrowing our popular American boys and girls.

The enthusiasm over Marcia Hunt at the Paramount studios is contagious. I just met the girl who is a professional model from New York and who, Ernst Lubitsch thinks, will become one of Paramount's best bets, and I must admit they certainly are planning to give her a great break. She is to play opposite George Raft in "I'm Coming Back to You," by Lucien Cary, a story of a baseball player who tops in the game until something happens and he goes down and down until rescued by a girl. George was considering a European offer but it doesn't seem likely Paramount will agree to his going.

Wonderful how these dogs will change our lives. Constance Collier, who adores Freddie Bartholomew, gave him a cocker spaniel pup and because they wouldn't take him in an apartment Freddie's aunt promptly moved into a house in Beverly Hills.

Miss Collier and Freddie are great friends and he is telling everybody she is going to play Nancy Sykes in "Oliver Twist" and how glad he is to have her in the picture. That is a compliment coming from Freddie, who hasn't gone Hollywood and like all children, always tells the truth.

The choice of Freddie March for "Anthony Adverse" is a unanimous one for only a few months ago Warner Brothers, in desperation, staged a contest to try to determine whom the picture-going public would like to see play the role in this popular story.

Freddie received an overwhelming majority of the votes cast and at that time there didn't seem any chance of their being able to get him. Then came the deal between Jack Warner and Darryl Zanuck and a fair exchange was made with Dick Powell going to Twentieth Century-Fox and Freddie going over to Warner Brothers for what should be one of the most important roles of his life.

Today was a busy day for Winfield Sheehan. After announcement that he would leave Fox, no less than three studios came after him. One offer, I hear unofficially, comes from John Otterson, of Paramount. Otterson and Sheehan were closeted together for several hours. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer deal is still on the fire but so far is not settled although in my opinion, Mr. Sheehan will probably accept the MGM offer.

Snapshots of Hollywood:

KITTY CARLISLE called in the house physician at one of the Beverly hotels in a hurry when a black spider bit her; but it proved to be only a nice California spider; KATHARINE HEPBURN is moving into the FRED NIBLO-Hilton home; this is the house which EMANUEL COHEN occupied for over a year and where he gave so many huge parties.

The old talk that LEWIS MILESTONE will wed KENDALL GLAENZER was revived after he rented PAT WRAY'S house. MRS. HARRY GREEN presented Harry with another boy at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. ANNE DARLING'S 10th birthday celebrated by ARTHUR STEBBINS with a party which included MR. and MRS. DARRYL ZANUCK, JOSEPH SCHENCK L. B. MAYER, SID GRAUMAN, EDDIE MANNIX, MR. and MRS. SAM KATZ and others. Talk is LEE BARUCH, niece of the financier, is interested in REGINALD COOPER, young Los Angeles financier. That's all today See you tomorrow!

New and Old Favorites Star on Boston Screens

Edward Everett Horton who is in "Going Highbrow," at the Paramount and Fenway.

The fast talking Bill Powell goes in for romance and lovely Luise Rainer, Hollywood's latest discovery in "Escapade," current film attraction at Loew's Orpheum.

Larry Rich Tops Bill

The first downtown screenings of "Escapade," romantic comedy starring William Powell and Luise Rainer, opened at Loew's Orpheum today.

"Escapade" introduces lovely Luise Rainer to American film audiences in a gay story of Vienna. The supporting cast includes Frank Morgan, Virginia Bruce, Reginald Owen, Mady Christians and Laura Hope Crews.

On the stage Larry Rich, the jovial jester, offers a dance, song and comedy skit, "Rich Moments." Others billed are Rich and Cheri, Jane Shirlee, Ruth Forstell and Larry Rich, Jr. The Havel Brothers revue, "Hot Water," is another featured act, and on the same bill are Helen Heath, Charles Randolph and Marcia Wayne. The Alexander and Santos revue, the Three Pubic Enemies and James Evans complete the program.

Another of the fast moving Dashiell Hammett mystery yarns, "The Glass Key," opens on the new Uptown bill tomorrow.

Bette Davis Stars In Reporter Role

George Brent Shares Honors in "Front Page Woman" at Fenway And Paramount

By JOYCE DANA

Bette Davis is the demon gal reporter in "Front Page Woman," a diverting and even plausible story of life and headlines on a couple of big metropolitan dailies, now on the screen at the Paramount and Fenway.

On the same bill is "Going Highbrow." All you'll need to know about it is that Guy Kibbee, Zasu Pitts and Edward Everett Horton are the trio of comics whose affairs get laughed at.

Both films are light and laughable summer entertainment, with no taxing moral lessons, no machine guns and no geometric dance routines to worry about.

Miss Davis and George Brent are rival reporters on different newspapers who make love prettily when they're not trying to beat each other to the city desk with a scoop on the latest scandal.

Like a lot of other men in the small salary bracket, Mr. Brent is pretty thoroughly convinced that a woman's place is definitely in the home. "Women are bum newspapermen" is his slogan. Incidentally it's the name of the story from which the film was adapted

* * *

George and Bette get involved in a red-hot fire-murder-missing-mystery-woman tale. Like all good reporters, their sleuthing abilities are not to be taken lightly. He finds out the identity of those present at the murder by the fragrant ruse of tracing an exotic perfume.

But Bette locates the missing corpse, gets an almost exclusive story from the baffling beauty who was at the scene of the crime, and has the satisfaction of seeing her persistent admirer jailed for contempt of court.

At the trial our Alger newsbound has pecked into the jury room, phoned the verdict to his paper before the judge knows what it's all about, and fixed the ballots so that his little gal pal will give her paper the wrong verdict.

Of course there's a happy fadeout, presumably with Bette promising to love, honor, obey and give up the newspaper business.

Your reviewer happens to like Miss Davis best when she goes dramatic in a big way. Here she wisecracks rather than weeps. But it's all in fun, and Roscoe Karns, Winifred Shaw and other good players help to make it entertaining enough.

ZaSu Pitts has a chance to put on airs in "Going Highbrow." With a husband who likes ham and eggs and a wife who likes the Waldorf, there's bound to be fun and fireworks

ZaSu and Guy Kibbee wind up by adopting a daughter, a young and pretty person named June Martel, as a means to "crash" the 400. Edward Everett Horton sponsors the coup, being pretty funny about the whole thing and looking very well indeed in a turned up moustache.

Ross Alexander is the attractive young juvenile who is the Prince Charming to Miss Martel's Cinderella. She even loses her shoe to start off their romance

There are plenty of laughs, and even though you won't have to think about it much, it'll keep your mind off the weather. Judy Canova, a female hill-billy who recently went to Hollywood via Broadway, has a small part, too.

This is the kind of entertainment which the three favorite neighborhood managers present this and every week.

At the Rivoli Theater in Roxbury, Lew Newman offers "Public Hero Number One" and "Vagabond Lady." The Embassy Theater in Waltham, under the managerial direction of William Hartnett, features "Public Hero Number One" and "Hooray for Love." At the Central Square Theater in Cambridge, Maurice Corkery has the attractions, "The Glass Key" and "Hooray for Love."

Obtain added enjoyment from your knowledge of the motion pictures stars by solving the "About Faces" series, which the Boston Evening American publishes every day. Fill in the squares above and answer the question. Save your solutions until the end of the week and then send them to the "About Faces" Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

The winning entries will receive in the mail either a beautiful Winship swim suit or a very useful cash award. When you send in your letter be sure to enclose a note with your age and the color and size of the suit desired. This is very important for the Winship-Bolt factory, maker of these suits, manufactures their product only to order.

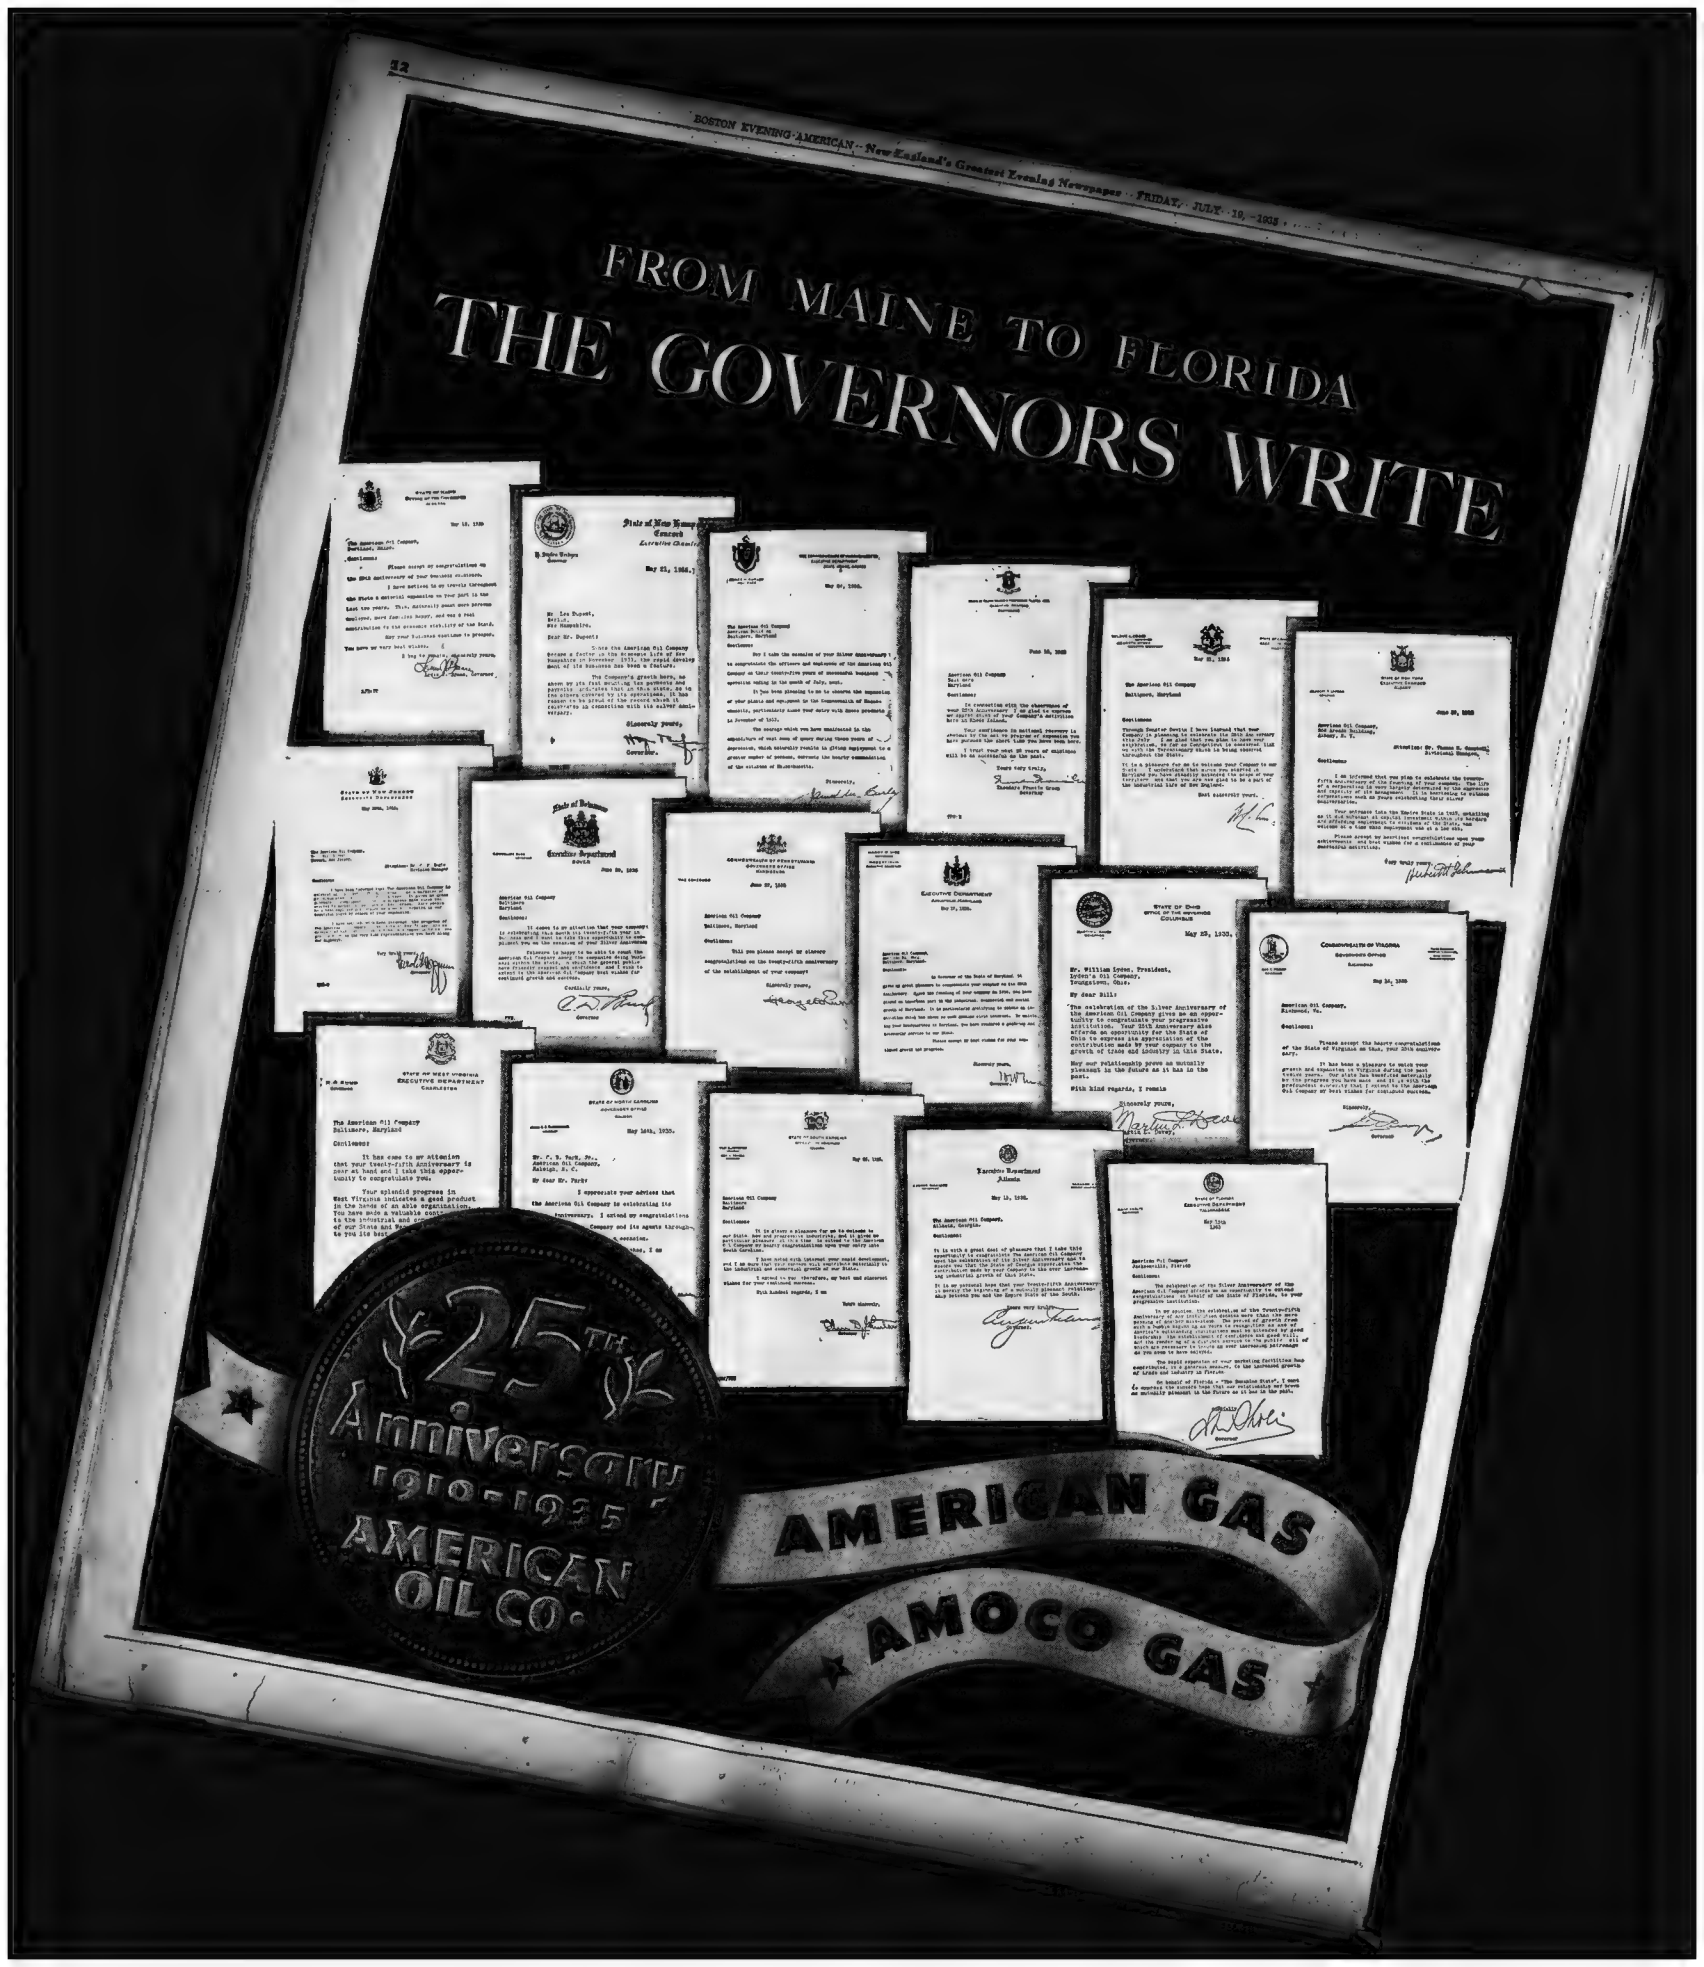

Remember then every swim suit which the Boston Evening American, through its "About Faces" series gives away, is an exclusive, individual and personal model.

Tomorrow we present number six of this week's series!

Opus on a Pretty Lady Amateur's Right to Quit

THE STIGMA AGAINST DEFAULTING by lady tennis athletes has risen sharply since Mrs. Helen Wills Moody decided between possible impairment of her health and a permanent heartache at Forest Hills, and surrendered her match with Miss Helen Jacobs.

Austen Lake

Since then the policy among the lady performers has been to give until the very death and plug along after competition has ceased to be a joy and their nerve centers are palsied.

So, when Miss Theodosia Smith skated on her bosom at Essex the other day, burst into a spray of tears, and decided to chuck it up, her stable mates made some churlish remarks about her nerve. The lady shower bath lawyers were pretty unanimous in saying that Miss Theo should have stayed at any cost to take her lickings even if she had to be propped in sitting position.

From the original viewpoint of tennis amateurism, which has been badly bent over the years, I hold that the Essex ladies were not too well up on their manners. The amateur who is supposed to be playing the game for the fun ought to have the privilege of resigning the contest when fun ceases and blind shudders begin.

The amateur, even some of those lady and gent tennis gigolos who sweat their amateur reputations for its perquisites, are in a different status from the professional. The pro owes allegiance to his employer and his paying public. But amateur tennis has not the decency to pay its artists a fair wage and encourages them to mooch their way unless they happen to possess independent means.

Equal Rights With College Football

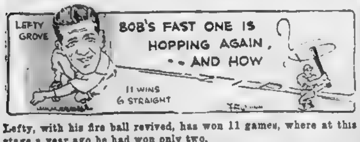

AS ONE WHO HAS ALWAYS held that lady athletes have twice the moral and physical courage of men and about one-half the male gallantry toward fallen opponents, I recall that the unkindest thing in international female tennis history was said not by a customer or a journalist, but by a lady athlete.

When Suzanne Lenglen, who was a woman of intense emotional compression, resigned to Molla Mallory and sat sobbing on the lower rungs of the umpire's ladder at Forest Hills, Miss Mallory walked away scornfully and branded her as a quitter. She said, with curled lips, that Suzanne played a nice mechanical game, but lacked normal spunk.

It would seem that a female performer should not be denied the same gentle and generous consideration that is offered to the college football amateurs at Harvard, Holy Cross, Dartmouth and other places where the athletes are unpaid. And if Miss Theo Smith or any other pretty lady says she is suffering infirmities, she should have the same right to be led to the sidelines, sponged off, and escorted to the rubbing room without being blistered orally by her playmates.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LEFTY GROVE being hale and sound and Lefty having a misery in his pitching shoulder is the difference between the Red Sox in fourth and seventh places.

Lefty, with his fire ball revived, has won 11 games, where at this stage a year ago he had won only two.

This nine-game difference is just the interval between the standing of the Red Sox and the Washington Senators.

Yussel Finesses a Trick

AMONG THE MANY CHARACTERS that make sport writing a goofy joy is Joe Jacobs, the comic page manager of black-browed Max Schmeling.

Times have been lean for Yussel along the Hardened Artery since Hitler voided his contract with Schmeling in Germany. So Jacobs, after his visit to Max in the latter's native setting, has cabled "O. K." to both promoters who are seeking the services of his fighter for September bouts.

Yussel is playing both ends against the middle, having wired Jimmy Johnston "Everything all right," thereby prompting Johnston to announce a Schmeling-Baer bout for September 26. And at the same moment Yussel cabled Mike Jacobs, "Everything O. K. with Max if dough posted." Which led Jacobs to broadcast that a Schmeling-Louis fight would be staged September 18.

Yussel is quivering with anxiety to manage Max in just one more battle on this side of the ocean. He has plans, has Yussel. Because immediately after the fight he will impound the winnings of his man by process of law and attempt to get judgment for such earnings as Max has made in Germany since their partnership was dissolved by Nazi order. This means such percentages as Max gained through cinema, advertising and his fight with Paolino Uscudun.

Prize Sample of Horse Suckerism

NEXT NOVEMBER A BROADWAY horse race show, called "Three Men on a Horse," is moving from New York, where it has had a year and a half run at the Playhouse, to Boston's Plymouth Theater.

It testifies to the flimsy methods by which horse bettors gamble away their cash. In New York race players have been attending the performances over and over again. Not so much for the theme of the show, but for the fact that one of the characters is supposed to be a horse handicapper named The Great Irwin.

The part, of course, is played by a journeyman actor, no more conversant with the probabilities of a nag's wind and limb than any curbstone loafer. But he runs impromptu tips on current races into his stage lives, naming horses that are running at nearby tracks the next day. And the clients sit in the theater gloom swiveling their ears to note these quips, or tips, dashing out afterward to play them.

Unfortunately for the play, The Great Irwin will only have a week in which to give synthetic horse hints to Boston audiences. Because the show comes here November 4 and Narragansett racing ends November 11.

BRIDGES Girl WINS

TAKES FIRST IN SWIM TRIAL

New York, July 19 (AP)—With three more championship events on the program, the second day of the Women's National Outdoor Swimming championships got underway at Manhattan Beach today.

Another champion, Alice Bridges of Whitinsville, Mass., led the way in the qualifying trials as fields were pared down in the 220-yard backstroke, 440-yard free style and 220-yard breaststroke.

Miss Bridges, husky defending champion, won the second heat of the backstroke trials by a handbreadth from Elizabeth Kompa, one of two New York sisters who qualified for the final this afternoon. Erna Kompa romped in the first heat by eight feet over Anna Mae Gorman of Homestead, Pa., who also qualified with her sister, Johanna Gorman, putting two pairs of sisters in the final.

The remainder of the seven backstroke qualifiers, on a basis of the two-heat winners and the next five fastest times, were Dorothy Forbes of Camden, N. J., and Mary Shepherd of Miami Beach, Fla.

Erna Kompa's time winning the first heat was 3.01.7, considerably back of the record set at 2 56.4 by Eleanor Holm Jarrett last year. Miss Bridges was timed in 3:03 8.

Lenore Kight of Homestead, Pa., having successfully defended the first of her three national titles in the mile yesterday, came back today to lead the way in one heat of the quarter-mile trials. Annie Govednik of Chisholm, Minn., third defending champion to appear, led the way in the 220-yard breaststroke trials in which two heats were raced to cut one contender from the field of eight. The unlucky last was Dorothy Poulin, of Pittsfield.

Qualifiers for this afternoon's final were Miss Govednik, and the Miami Beach sisters Dorothy and Katherine Rawls, latter holder of the record of 3 13 6 for the distance; Dorothy Schiller, of Chicago, who beat Katherine Rawls in the first heat; Nora Allen, of Homestead Pa., and Anna Nerich and Margaret Burn, both of New York.

Action that is action was caught by Boston American cameraman as the Red Sox bowed to the Detroit Tigers. Here is Charley Gehringer completing a double play as Bing Miller knocked him off his feet while sliding into second. Gehringer completed the play while in mid air by throwing out Rick Ferrell at first who had hit to Owen.

TIGER CREEPS UP AS YANKS BOW

Roof Stays Eight Games Above Red Sox

By Joe Cashman

With the Yankees entertaining the Browns, little did the Tigers think they'd pull a full game nearer the roof when they walked off the field with an 8-0 decision over the Sox.

Yet that's what happened. The Mound City cellarites conquered the league-leading New Yorkers, 4-1, in 11 innings. Thus the Bengals trail by only 1½ games.

The Sox had some consolation in defeat. Both the third-place White Sox and the fifth-place Indians were knocked off. And the roof remains just eight games away.

Wes Ferrell dislikes being outhit almost as much as being outpitched by a rival hurler. He suffered both blows when he faced Schoolboy Rowe. The Tiger ace had a perfect day at bat, getting a triple, two singles and a walk in four times up, knocking in two runs and scoring two markers. Wesley's best in three attempts was a walk, the only one drawn by the Sox.

The Sox strategy board had a mind to walk Hank Greenberg in the fifth. Then decided to pitch to him. The slugging first-sacker produced a single, his only safety of the game, and rescued two mates to bring his amazing runs-batted-in total to 119.

When Jo-Jo White was started in centerfield in place of Gerald Walker the Tigers presented the same lineup they used in the last world series.

The St. Louis Deans equalled our Grove-Ferrell team's victory total of 25 when Brother Paul whipped the Braves for his 10th triumph.

The world's champion Cardinals thus ran their string of consecutive victories to 14 and the Warriors suffered their 11th straight setback.

Putting over two runs in the ninth to tie the score, the league-leading New York Giants eventually whipped the stubborn Cincinnati Reds in the 11th frame to get an even break in the four-game series and retain their four-game lead over the second-place Frisch clan from the Mound City.

The dizzy Dodgers made a clean sweep of the series with the Pirates in Pittsburgh by taking the final game, 5-3. As a result the Flatbush crew climbed back into fifth place over the Reds and now trails the fourth place Bucs by but three games.

Pinkey Higgins hit two home runs to give the A's their margin of victory over the Indians, who were dropping their fourth straight game and suffering their sixth loss in seven starts on this Eastern trip.

$443.40 Double Price

Two records were posted during the dog racing at Taunton when the combination of Golden Wager and Jerry Actor in the daily double rewarded ticket holders $443.40 for $2, the highest daily double greyhound return in Massachusetts to date.

The victory of Golden Wager in the second gave the second highest straight win return of the meeting, $50.60.

Tonight's featured eight event at Taunton has all the indications of being a thrilling race. William Finneran has bracketed together such fleet greyhounds as Chase Me, Roughneck, Dee, Kemo.

U. S. Chances On Shoulders Of Green

By Associated Press

London, July 19—The chances of an American victory in the track and field meet at White City tomorrow, bringing the combined teams of Harvard and Yale against Cambridge and Oxford, hinges largely on the success or failure of the invader—burley Milton Green of Harvard.

British and American camps claim four victories each out of the 12 events and put Green's three events in the "doubtful class." Triumphs by the Harvard ace in the low and high hurdles and broad jump would give the Harvard-Yale team victory if the dope ran true to form in other events.

Green's chances in the low sticks are considered better than against A. J. Fitzgerald of Cambridge in the high hurdles and Duncan of Oxford in the broad jump.

Keith Brown of Yale, who set a new English polevault record in the English championships, is considered to have this event at his mercy. Joseph Johnson and Robert Train of Yale are favored in the shotput, with Robert Hall, Harvard, and John Badman, Yale, the choices in the high jump. Erskine Smith, Yale, is the choice for the 100-yard dash, but it is doubtful if he can repeat in the 220.

The English are expected to show their strength in the four longer races, with Goldfrey Brown and Mike Sullivan, both of Cambridge, favored in the quarter and half-mile. John Scheu of Harvard may give Stoddard a real fight for the mile, however.

DYING SWAN POSE HELPS TWIN KILLING AT FENWAY

BEATS Jean BAUER

IN GRISWOLD GOLF FINAL

Eastern Point, Con., July 19 (AP)—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia today defeated Miss Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., by margin of 5 and 4 to win the Grisworld cup for the seventh time.

Miss Bauer, 1934, winner of the invitation golf tournament at the Shenecossett Club, was no match for the former national titleholder.

The Providence girl failed to win a single hole.

Mrs. Vare gained command of the match by becoming four up on the outgoing nine. Her medal score, 36, was only two over men's par, while Miss Bauer was out in 42.

The defending champion was steadier but unable to cut down Mrs. Vare's margin on the home stretch. Mrs. Vare won the tenth, to become five up, and they halved the remaining four holes.

SAINTS Duel Jordan PARK NINE

The games in the Boston Park League show clearly just how close is the race. Two of the four games carded Thursday ended in ties. A big upset occurred at Jefferson Playground when Barney McDermott's boys lost to the St. Lazarus team, 9-3. Tonight may bring forth even more surprises in this fast loop.

At the Town field, Jordan's will play the St. Lazarus team of Orient Heights.

Out at Fallon field George Walker's Roslindale club will play the Wolf club. Manager Walch of the clothiers will probably use his ace, McDermott, on the mound, while old reliable Jim Shea will pitch for Roslindale.

In the other contests, Bill Madden's boys entertain Dick Casey's Neponset club at Marcella Street Playground, Roxbury, and Billy Benson's St. Augustines face the Hennigans at Columbus park, Southie.

WILSON PICKS DISCOVERY AS BEST

VANDERBILT STAR CARRIES TOP WEIGHT

IN WITH 131 POUNDS

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections made for a fast track)

BEST BET — DISCOVERY

Suffolk Downs, East Boston, July 19 — Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, kingpin of American thoroughbreds heads the list of eight overnight entrants for the $10,000 added Bunker Hill Handicap, one mile and a furlong of an attractive card of eight races here tomorrow afternoon.

Discovery's spectacular victory in the running of the Butler Memorial handicap last week at Empire City entrenched him securely in the top most position of present day turf leaders.

The stout hearted son of display figures to win, if his recent efforts are a criterion. Discovery has won his last four races in a row, including the rich Stars and Stripes at Arlington Park, the Suburban at Aqueduct, a special race at Detroit with Azucar, and the Butler Memorial.

His burden of 131 pounds does not seem excessive due to his outstanding victories. In fact, the race appears made to order for him. Johnny Bejshak who has been riding him in all of his recept victories arrived here yesterday to guide the son of Display. It appears that only a very bad break in racing luck can beat him.

FIRST—AL NEIMAN, BOOCAP, POLO BAR

AL NIEMAN, fresh and good, appears the logical choice over the platers in the opener. This fellow at one time was a high-class plater. He still possesses some class and, as he encounters a very ordinary field here, hè promises to take down the heavy money. BOOCAP is a hard-hitting mare which, right on present form, mut be the place choice. She is at her tops. POLO BAR will be running at the finish and should be up in time for the show. CARSONO was overmatched last out. He is a keen long-shot possibility here.

SECOND—CRACKLE, DARK WAR, PANA FRANKA

CRACKLE holds an edge in class over the field here. Going back to his one victory in New England, the Westerner will have no trouble outstaying this bad lot of sprinters. DARK WAR favors the track and always must be respected in a race of this sort. He is at his best. PANA FRANKA has been going nicely in trials and rates a fine chance. The same goes for LIBERTY OAK.

THIRD—JESSIE D. M., MEROVECH, BELLE GRIER

JESSIE D. M. won her last in game style and needs only to run back to that sterling performance to make it two in a row by beating the platers in this six furlong test. She holds the speed to be close to the pace and the ability to come on and outstay them to the wire. MEROVECH every once in a while turns in a sharp effort. She has been going briskly in trials and looms fort as a keen contender. BELLE GRIER fourth on the eligible list will be formidable if she breaks in. ALWINTOUR holds an outside chance.

FOURTH—MOTTO, WISE PRINCE, CLOUDSWEEPER

MOTTO, right at the peak of her form is my choice to turn back the good field of sprinters entered here. The Whitney filly performed impressively to win her last, in a swiftly run three quarters and as she is nicely weighed here wtih only 111 pounds, I must take her. WISE PRINCE ran gamely and well to winhis last over a bad track. He drops 4 pounds off that performance and on all form is strictly the one to beat. SPIXI is at her tops and is partial to this course and abbreviated distance. However, she seems heavily burdened with 120 pounds CLOUD SWEEPER may be along in time to take down the short end of the purse. Mud would improve his chances considerably.

FIFTH—MOTTO, OPEN RANGE, NORTH WALES II

If MOTTO is reserved for this affair she should win it easily. She is bred to go the mile and seventy yards and appears even better placed here than in the fourth. OPEN RANGE is a fast trick which is better than his last indicates. On top form this fellow will take plenty of beating. NORTH WALES 2ND favors the route and is in splendid trim taking a line from recent clever training. He is in the hands of a capable trainer

SIXTH RACE—DISCOVERY, ADVISING ANNA, TIME SUPPLY

DISCOVERY, champion of champions, will have ADVISING ANNA for his principal rival. The latter is a sharp filly at present which is in here with the postage stamp of103 pounds. This way weighted, she should fairly fly and may prove a serious threat for a good part of the way. TIME SUPPLY has been going great guns in training and will not be easy to down on top 1935 form. He is a good game performer which holds plenty of class. IDENTIFY, a stable-mate of Discovery, holds all of his speed and should set a terrific early pace and kill off the speed horses in the early stages. GALLANT MAC is as good as his last winning stake performance.

SEVENTH—TREASURY KEY, CAERLEON, TRUE CHARM

TREASURY KEY outclasses the claiming sprinters here. It seems just a question of her breaking in from the also eligible list. Recent form has been excellent and she has little to tear from this cheap band. CAERLEON turned in a good effort last out. In front of that this fellow worked six furlongs in 1 14 over at Narragansett. Dead fit, he promises to be right there at the finish. TRUE CHARM is a fair sort and should account for the show. METAURUS comes well recommended by the clockers, and may go much better than rated here

EIGHTH—COUSIN GEORGE, SUN ENVOY, THREE DAGG[redacted]

It is impossible to go beyond COUSIN GEORGE in seeking the winner of the final. His recent sterling endeavor behind tack stamps him far superior to the platers entered to go here. Nothing the others have displayed in public measures up to Cousin George's record. SUN ENVOY holds a touch of class and as his last effort was a good one, he is entitled to the place call. THREE DAGGERS, a well bred Whitney castoff should not be out of the picture. Catino and Pass are money possibilities.

DANNO DEFEATS JIM BROWNING

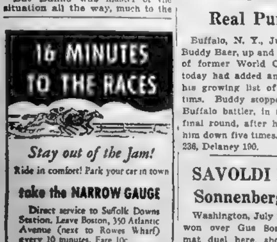

Philadelphia, July 19—Danno O'Mahoney added another win to his sparkling record here when he pinned veteran Jim Browning in only 24 minutes and 11 seconds, at the Arena outdoor stadium.

Danno's flying body scissors, which he has polished until it is as effective as his famed Irish Whip, gave him the win.

The bout started and continued at a torrid pace, with Browning giving the powerful Gael plenty of trouble.

But Danno was master of the situation all the way, much to the delight of the 9000 fans who howled approval of his wrestling.

In another match, Hank Barber of Cambridge, Mass., former Dartmouth football star, beat Stan Pinto with a flying tackle.

BUDDY Real Puncher

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19 (INS)—Buddy Baer, up and coming brother of former World Champion Max, today had added another name to his growing list of knockout victims. Buddy stopped Al Delaney, Buffalo battler, in the fourth and final round, after having knocked him down five times. Baer weighed 236, Delaney 190.

SAVOLDI KICKS, Sonnenberg Loses

Washington, July 19—Joe Savoldi won over Gus Sonnenberg in a mat duel here, shortly after the half hour mark. Sonnenberg unluckily missed a flying tackle. A neat place kick off Gus' chin then helped Savoldi to victory.

FORM FOR A CHAMPION

Marian Mansfield, eighteen-year-old student from Northwestern, one of the fastest rising of the present crop of swimming and diving stars, the present holder of the junior diving championship crown, is snapped in mid-air as she leaves the springboard making a difficult but graceful half-twist dive. Miss Mansfield is competing for the national three-meter springboard championship at the present swimming title meet being held at Manhattan Beach, L. I.

Cicotte's First Pitch Tipped Gamblers

By Bill Corum

Chicago, July 19—The glory that was Rome isn't any more and, from a baseball standpoint, it's just like that in Chicago. They haven't had a truly good ball team in this town since the White Sox of 1919 harked to the siren whispers of Arnold Rothstein's furtive messengers and chucked a world's series to the astounded Cincinnati Reds.

You will recall how in that dark October the Rothstein henchmen left the "fix dough" under the pillows of enough White Sox players to cinch the biggest betting coup ever put over in organized baseball. Also to create the game's biggest scandal; one that just failed to sink the ship.

That was a grand ball team that the New York gamblers corrupted. A team so good that many competent baseball men are inclined to call it the best the sport ever has produced. But that is only guesswork.

Although 15 summers have come and gone since the crookedness of that series was made public, the whole and true story of "the fix" has never been told Fragments have been disclosed from time to time, but never the complete account in all its unsavory detail.

Cicotte Made Good

We know now, for instance, how Eddie Cicotte, who was to pitch the first game of the series for Chicago, agreed to walk, or hit with a pitched ball, the first Cincinnati batsman as a sign to the waiting gamblers that the works were in.

Cicotte made good his traitor promise and caromed his second or third pitch off the shoulders of the first Red at the plate. Dozens of gamblers, hanging breathlessly over telegraph wires at strategic points all over the country, leaped into action at that signal.

They bet and they never stopped betting until there was no longer an unwary honest dollar to meet their tempting offers. For the fix was on. A man in the know couldn't lose. Arnold Rothstein loved it that way. That was his dish. Some have called Rothstein "the brain." Others have listed him with the big gamblers that have come and gone through the years.

Sure Thing Bettor

I could never believe he was either. True, he would, and did, wager prodigious sums. But never except when he had all the best of it going for him. What nerve does-it-take to back a sure thing? Scant wonder that so[illegible] even on silly, sentimental Broadway was there a tear or a semblance of a sigh, when "the brain's," number dropped that night in the little area-way of a side street New York hotel.

Which does not alter the fact that the cheating money that corrupted the White Sox seemed to cast a jinx on Chicago baseball that has existed to this day

True the Cubs have come through with a couple of pennant winners since. But they were stumbling, fumbling ordinary teams that brought scant credit to their adopted city, and of whose bowing in the world's series the less said the better.

The ancient Cornelius McGillicuddy's Philadelphia Athletics knocked our Mr. Joseph Vincent McCarthy's pennant winning Cub combination lopsided and silly looking.

But Mr. McCarthy got even—in spades. He came back at the head of the Yankees and with the able assistance of that near-forgotten man, Babe Ruth, he did unto the Cubs as they had done unto him as a manager.

Single handed, the Babe practically blew Charlie Grimm's feeble collection of National League champions out of the series ball parks, and finally wound up calling his shots against them.

DAVIS Draw Break FOR U. S.

(Universal Service Special Cable)

London, July 19—America's chances in the interzone Davis Cup tennis final with Germany starting at Wimbledon tomorrow were enhanced today.

The draw pitted Donald Budge against Heiner Henkel and Wilmer Allison against Baron Gottfried Von Cramm for the opening singles matches.

Allison and John Van Ryn will go against Von Cramm and K. Lund in the doubles on Monday and on Tuesday, Henkel plays Allison and Von Cramm meets Budge in the final singles contests.

It is believed that the red-haired Budge, who has flashed the best tennis among the Americans here thus far, would have a better chance of winning both his singles matches if he drew the 19-year-old Henkel in the first round.

Budge at Peak

A victory over Henkel, which seems highly probable, would give the towering Oakland youth renewed confidence against Von Cramm on Tuesday.

Budge's selection for the singles instead of Sidney Wood was not surprising in view of the redhead's splendid showing at Wimbledon. While Wood was eliminated in an early round by Jack Crawford, Budge did not give way until the semifinal when he lost out in a desperate battle with the more experienced Von Cramm.

Th choice of Allison for both singles and doubles was a foregone conclusion despite the Texan's poor showing in the first round at Wimbledon. Allison, America's top-ranking singles player, carried Fred Perry to five sets in the last American championship and has been showing vastly improved form in practice.

America is a 2 to 1 favorite to defeat the Germans for the right to play England, the defending champion, in the challenge round.

West Springfield, July 19—With the attendance and mutual handle growing nightly, officials of the Crescent Kennel Club announced today that work would begin immediately on a $5000 improvement project to increase accommodations for the greyhound fans.

Part of this improvement is the opening of a new 50-foot ramp to the selling and cashier windows.

Your entry must reach the "Daily Double" Handicap Game Editor of the Boston American, P. O. Box 1946, or deliver to 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, not later than 1 P. M., Saturday, July 20

Here are the Rules:

To play the "Daily Double" Game name the horses you think will win the first and third races at Suffolk Downs. Then place the names of the horses you believe will run second and third in each of the two races.

20 pairs of tickets to the Suffolk Downs Races will be given each day to winners.

Winners will be picked under the following rules:

Entries that pick the "Daily Double" will be given first consideration. Should there be fewer "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, winners of the remaining tickets will be scored as follows: First counts 8 points, second counts 4 points, and third counts 2 points in each of the two races. The entries scoring the largest number of points will be declared the winners.

In the event there are more "Daily Double" winners than there are prizes, the prizes will be given to the "Daily Double" winners who score the largest number of points in selecting the horses that run second and third in the first and third races. In scoring these winners the following rules will be observed: Place counts 4 points and show 2 points for each race. Tied contestants will each receive a ticket.

In the event any of the horses you pick are scratched, the next horse will be automatically moved up one space on your list. For example, should your first choice fail to start, the second horse named becomes your first choice and the third horse your second choice.

Except where horses are scratched, your selections must run in the order in which you list them on your entry blank in order to be counted. ONLY THE NAME OF ONE HORSE MAY BE SELECTED WHERE THE HORSES ARE COUPLED IN BETTING, AS IN ENTRIES AND FIELDS. The decision of the judges will be final and no entries returned.

A coupon for Monday's "Daily Double" selections will be printed Saturday.

Each day's winners will be printed in all editions of the Boston Evening American the day after the races are run (Saturday's winners in Monday's editions).

Mr. Boston Owner Seeks Sweep

By JACK CONWAY

ALFRED GWYNNE VANDERBILT is an ambitious young millionaire. He won't be satisfied with merely winning the $10,000 Bunker Hill Handicap at Suffolk Downs tomorrow. He wants his horses to finish one, two, three.

The Vanderbilt horses, Discovery Identify and Gallant Mac have an excellent chance to accomplish such a feat. Discovery and Identify have been rated for some time with the best stake horses in the country, while Gallant Mac showed its true colors in beating Identify in a wild stretch run last Saturday.

Mr. Boston

• • •

The Vanderbilt entry will probably be an odds on favorite. Time Supply, winner of the Narragansett Special a year ago, will also make a stout-hearted bid for the high honors. Time Supply was recently beaten by Dark Hope at Narragansett. This was partly due to a muddy track and also to the fact Time Supply threw a shoe during the race. One of the nails remained in the horse's foot and caused severe injury.

• • •

Advising Anna, conqueror of Discovery at Rockingham a year ago, will also be a starter tomorrow.

• • •

Teraice, Howard, Gusto and Governor Schultz will also get away from the Bahr gate in the one and an eighth mile event.

• • •

LOUIS OKAY

GENE Tunney says Joe Louis will be heavyweight champion of the world as soon as he gets an opportunity to battle for the title. Tunney declares Louis has come to the front so rapidly and has such ordinary competition that it is unlikely that the fans will ever find out how good the "Brown Bomber" is as a fighter.

Ann Marsters, famous feature writer, has written Max Baer's impressions of Joe Louis for the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"Could you beat Joe Louis?" Miss Marsters asked Baer.

You will be interested in Max's

Miss Marsters proved herself a first class reporter when she asked Baer a question in which the public is vitally interested.

"Was your bout with Jimmy Braddock a fake?"

Baer's face became a bit red, but he gave an answer right from the shoulder.

I suggest you read Miss Marsters interview in the Boston Sunday Advertiser

TITLE REFEREE

I AGREE with Ed Don George when he says neither Ted Tonneman nor Sam Smith should be named as referee for the champion's bout with Danno O'Mahoney at Braves Field a week from Tuesday night.

George's objection to Smith and Tonnerman is that each of them worked in previous bouts which O'Mahoney won. I don't believe there is anything to George's claim that the referee mentioned favored Danno, but as Don thinks they did, they should be banned.

There are numerous first class officials who could be secured to referee the bout which will definitely clear up the heavyweight wrestling muddle.

I shall drop out to see O'Mahoney train at Mansion Inn, Wayland, on Sunday. Danno has been wrestling with success through the Middle West. He pinned Jim Browning in Philadelphia last night and after the bout started for Boston.

Braves Tie Browns' Record Losing Streak

St. Louis, July 19 (U8)—With Paul Dean pitching five-hit ball, the St. Louis Cardinals easily hung up their 14th straight victory, crushing the Braves, 13 to 3. The defeat was the 11th in a row for the Braves, equalling the season's longest losing streak, made by the St. Louis Browns in the American League.

The Braves left for Pittsburgh after the game. They were to tackle the Bucs there today, and perhaps break their amazing string of defeats.

Retail Golf Finale Today

The Retail Store Four Ball League will wind up its season this afternoon at the Charles River Country Club.

Due to the fact that the league was a seven-team organization this season the interest has not measured up to previous store team championships.

The C. F. Hovey Co. has the title, which carries with it the Mitton Cup, sewed up, and Captain Joe Howe, Carter Hoyt, Bob Brady and Lester Morse will sit on the side lines today and watch the Conrad's and Filene's battle for second place. The win gives Hovey its first leg on the Mitton Cup, which was put into competition a year ago and won by the Jordan Marsh Company.

SEMIFINALS

J. R. Willing and F. L. Gates vs. Art Ross and Jesse Guilford.

R. L. Goodale and Don Conners vs. A. V. Rogers, Jr., and F. H. Peterson.

By Bill Grimes

During the first two rounds, three outstanding contenders for championship flight honors passed out of the Winchester Country club annual four-ball invitation.

This left Art Ross, Marshfield and Jesse Guilford, Woodland, and Art Rogers of the home club and Ned Peterson of Oakley, to carry on for the better known combinations.

Danny Shea South Shore and Joe Fay, Woodland, the medalists of the qualifying round, did not survive the first round of match play, going out on the short end of a tilt with J. R. Willing and F. L. Gates, Brae Burn.

Willing and Gates came right back in the afternoon and took the measure of E. O. Turner and Henry Marcy, Oak Hill, who were pretty much exhausted after their three extra-hole victory over Hod Ford and W. H. Mitchell.

Excepting the Shea-Fay defeat, the favorites weathered the first round but in the P. M., Judge Joseph W. Monahan and Les Brown, Sandy Burr and Bobby Knowles and "Bud" Moulton hit the deck.

Bobby Goodale and Don Conners put out Monahan and Brown, in a match which went to the home hole, while Knowles and Moulton proved easy pickings for Art Ross and Jesse Guilford, losing 6 and 3.

Semifinals

Art Ross and Jesse Guilford are playing J. R. Willing and Buzzie Gates this morning and although there is plenty of class to the Brae Burn combination, the odds are on the Marshfield-Woodland team.

In the lower half, Goodale and Conners are out with Art Rogers and Ned Peterson and G. C. Neiley, Winchester, 6 and 5, in the morning and were equally successful against Norwood E. Kellenberger and Al Brooks, Salem, in the afternoon.

Potentially, Ross and Guilford and Rogers and Peterson are the finalists.

Golfers Enjoy Free Lessons

One of the largest class lessons in golf ever given here-to-fore was put on at Franklin Park golf course when Alex Morrison taught principles of the game free of charge to readers of the Boston Evening American.

More than a hundred golfers attended Morrison's class at the famed municipal layout. Other large classes were instructed later in the day at Metropolitan Theater where Morrison concluded his stage engagement.

The Boston Evening American sponsored classes, therefore, will be productive of much good golf. The hundreds who enjoyed the lessons were all ready to start practise today on the points learned.

TOMORROW IN ESSEX TENNIS

By Bob Benefick

Manchester By the Sea, July 19—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Cambridge and Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt, Pasadena, today qualified for the final of the eleventh annual Essex club tournament.

Mrs. Fabyan defeated Miss Katherine Winthrop, Manchester, 6—2, 6—2, while Mrs. Arnold downed Miss Florence Lebouitllier, Westbury, L. I., 7—5, 6—1, in the semi-final rounds today.

Mrs. Fabyan's victory was achieved in 30 minutes play. She took advantage of Miss Winthrop's very erratic play throughout. Miss Winthrop consistently drove out in her efforts to force the former Sarah Palfrey into a base-line duel.

Mrs. Arnold's victory was achieved by careful use of her superior pace off the forehand.

Service breaks were numerous in the opening set of the Arnold-Lebouitllier match. Mrs. Arnold led at 5—3 but Miss Lebouitllier rallied to 5—5. Mrs. Arnold broke through service in the eleventh game and finally held her service at 7—5 to win the set. 7—5. Miss Lebouitllier won the opening game of the second set but Mrs. Arnold ran off the next six games to end the match, 7—5, 6—1.

Indians Flag Hopes Riddled by Injuries

Cleveland, July 19 (AP)—With Clint Brown, pitcher, perhaps permanently out of the Indians lineup because of eye injuries, officials of the Cleveland baseball company found plenty of reasons today to explain the teams sudden descent to fifth place in the American League.

Brown was injured shortly before July 4, when a fan threw a firecracker on the field. The firecracker exploded in front of the players' bench and threw dust and pebbles into Brown's face.

Relatives in Titusville, Pa., said Brown probably is through with baseball. They said he is blind in one eye and may lose the sight of the other.

His injury is the most serious of a long list which has plagued the Indians this season.

Earl Averill, star centerfielder, injured his fingers playing with firecrackers and was out of the lineup for about three weeks.

Averill's substitute, Milt Galatzer, was beaned last week in New York. Ab Wright, rookie outfielder, fractured a finger and was out for some time.

Wednesday in Boston, Mel Harder, star pitcher, cut his thumb when a bat broke in his hand and has been seriously handicapped. Bill Knickerbocker, shortstop, suffered an appendicitis attack at training camp and was out of the lineup until late in May.

Frankie Pytlak, first string catcher, went on the voluntary retired list Tuesday when he said he would not play ball "feeling a rotten" as he did. Yesterday, Oral Hildebrand, another pitcher, returned to Cleveland under the care of a physician to recuperate from the effect of a spell of insomnia.

3 BOSTON Twi Games TONIGHT

With three games on tap in the Boston Twilight League this evening, the clubs will get a warming up for some interesting Sunday afternoon battles when the entire circuit will be operating.

This evening the Mayor Irwin team of Medford will again have the use of Hall's Field for the game against the Cambridge Cubs. The Jefferson Club will play Miller Oil at Waltham; Bike Park and the Middlesex Laundry will clash with Arlington at Spy Pond.

The Jefferson Club has obtained the use of Russell Field, North Cambridge for Sunday against the Lynch Club.

CAMDEN LAGER COHEN'S TOP CHOICE AT REVERE

Fleet Brown Sugar Feature Threat

By Sam Cohen

Camden Lager, owned by Dennis Allen, has been well rested up since his nose defeat by Police Court and in tonight's feature race at Wonderland Park, he figures to stand a world of beating.

CANOE Fete Feature PARADE

WATER EVENTS COLORFUL

By Murray Kramer

Colorful illumination furnishing the background for a two-day water carnival that opens tomorrow night will provide canoe enthusiasts with one of the finest regattas ever staged in New England.

The novelty program which takes place on the Charles River at West Roxbury and Dedham will start tomorow evening with a water parade.

With canoes illuminated by multi-colored lights and Japanese lanterns, together with novelty floats and other surprises forming a procession line of over a mile, the spectacle is expected to attract the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a local water carnival.

After the opening Saturday night which will have all the fixins such as music and water exhibitions in addition to the parade, the New England Canoe Racing Association will hold a regatta Sunday afternoon that has already attracted 100 stars for the 41 events listed.

The regatta will open at 2 p. m. at the new M. D. C. bathing beach at the bathhouse, north of Spring street bridge, in West Roxbury, with a full schedule of races, water sports and novelty canoe events.

New England Canoe Racing Association medals and ribbons will be awarded for all of the Sunday events.

Yankees Big Headache, Says Mickey

BUT HOSE STILL HAVE CHANCE IN RACE

By Joe Cashman

Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, old B. U. athlete who has made good in the majors in a big way, has no quarrel to pick with those who hold that m[illegible] clubs than his second-place Detroit Tigers and the pace-setting New York Yankees have a good chance to win this American League pennant race.

But Bridgewater Mike frankly admits that only the McCarthymen are worrying him and his charges.

"I don't mean that the White Sox, Red Sox or Indians are out of the running," the Bengals' dynamic boss hastens to explain, "but until one of these rivals pass us, I feel we're entitled to go along in the belief that if we can beat the Yanks, we'll repeat our triumph of last year.

"Right now we're priming for the series in New York next week. We gained a lead we never lost by knocking off the Yanks on our second visit to their back yard last season. We hope to do it again.

Yanks at Home

"If we fall, we figure to have a mighty stiff battle on our hands the rest of the way what with the Yanks having the schedule advantage, which we had last year, of spending the last month at home."

MICKEY COCHRANE

The Tigers would be enjoying a comfortable lead today, Mickey opined, but for a wretched start and Schoolboy Rowe's inability to live up to 1934 form.

"We couldn't do anything right during the first two or three weeks of the race," he recalled. "Then when the rest of the gang hit its stride, Rowe continued to have his troubles. With three or four runs to work on, he was the safest bet in the league to win last year. He hasn't been to date. He's pitched several good games, but he hasn't been consistent.

"His showing in the opener

BENGAL BOSS PINS HOPE IN ROWE

against the Sox was most encouraging. He looked like his old self for the first time on this trip. If he can keep on displaying that form we'll be sitting pretty.

"I feel just as I did last year. We have the punch, defensive strength and everything else needed to be champions if Rowe has a good year."

The "Schoolboy" sure looked great against our Red Sox in gaining his ninth victory in 16 eforts.

He yielded only four singles and let but one native get to second while he won, 8 to 0, over Wes Ferrell.

That may mean the giant Arkansan is going to be hot from here in.

Then, again, it may not, or he's always amazingly effective against the Fenway flock.

While other clubs were finding him a cousin, he turned in a victory on his first visit here and then shut out the Croninmen on their first second invasion of Detroit.

BRADDOCK Boxes With McCARTHY

Columbus, O., July 19 (AP)—James J. Braddock, world's heavyweight boxing champion, went about the business today of cashing in on his comet-like rise to the throne of fightdom.

The champion, with his peppery manager, Joe Gould, planned to dicker with promoters for appearance on an exhibition tour.

He donned the gloves in an exhibition match here last night, his first appearance outside New York since giving Max Baer a few pointers on the manly art.

The former dock-hand gave a spirited exhibition of punching in a no decision three-rounder with Jack McCarthy of Boston.

Gould said, however, that Braddock would not point in exhibition bouts for any immediate defense of the title. He added that a regular bout is not being considered before the summer or fall of 1936 at the earliest.

Gould indicated that among the offers already made, they would probably accept one to show in Louisville.

MARCH TO BE RADIO GUEST TONIGHT

By N. F. T.

Dramatic excerpts from "The Dark Angel" screen feature, soon to be seen in the movie mansions of the land, provide the "Holywood Hotel" radio program with its principal program appeal for loudspeaker patrons (WNAC) this evening during the 9:30 to 10:30 lapsing of time.

No less prominent picture personages than Frederic March and Merle Oberon are the film favorites to be heard in the main "mike" roles. Popular young Mr. Dick Powell presides as the ceremony master, with Louella Parsons, the well known Boston Evening American writer of current Hollywood happenings there to introduce Merle and Frederic to the nationwide air audience. All of which originates out on the Pacific shores, where so many actors, actresses and cameras must click to make money.

"N. F. T."

"Some Day," from Herbert's "Her Regiment," "Estrellita" by Ponce and Ware's "Hindu Slumber Song" will be sung by Jessica Dragonette, soprano star of the weekly concert (WEEI) hour of entertainment scheduled for tonight at 8 p. m. Ross Graham, baritone, also will be featured as soloist singing "Through the Years," from the Youmans production of the same name.

Truly unique "Graduation exercises" will be held on the air (WEEI) this evening. Six artists, new to network audiences, will receive their "diplomas" in the form of regular radio contracts.

The youthful and promising performers, who will be heard in their program from 9:30 to 10 p. m., have been graduated from the "Airbreaks" broadcast, conducted by J. Ernest Cutting, NBC director of auditions, in search of new talent.

Radio Answers

Q—Did Floyd Gibbons leave the air to go overseas after first hand reports of the Italian-Abyssinian situation? When will he return?
W. L. H., of Winchester.

A—No, he has gone to Florida for a brief spell to supervise the construction of a new winter home, although he is considering an assignment as you mention and may be at the scene of action, if any, before very long.

Q—Where can I write to get a picture of Nelson Eddy and also how can I reach Guy Principato by mail?
Anna, of Boston.

A—Write to the station where you hear these artists. That procedure applies to all radio personalities and answers a score or more of questions of the kind now in hand here.

Q—What has become of "Gene and Glenn" who did the comical "Jake and Lena" impressions?
M. S., of Cambridge.

A—They are vacationing and endeavoring to acquire new sponsorship. No word of their return yet received.

Q—Is the "Amos 'n' Andy" story in book form, as someone has said?
Volume, of Braintree.

A—Not that is known, although they have bound their own scripts into huge volumes, which are for their own record and library.

Q—Is Hal Kemp, the orchestra leader, really Fred Waring under another name? They sound exactly alike when they speak.
T. F. of Jamaica Plain.

A—No, indeed; they are both very prominent in musical and composing circles and made dance music records before broadcasting was generally in vogue.

MARTHA LEE'S MARKET TIPS

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

The markets offer fresh fruits and vegetables to help in serving summer foods. Fresh fruit, as served at the Martha Lee Cooking School this week, would be a very satisfying finish to the meal.

Fill half a cantaloupe with fresh raspberries and chill thoroughly before serving. Or a raspberry sherbet which is made in the tray of the refrigerator may be used.

A circular slice of honeydew may be filled with blackberries, or lime sherbet. A dessert that is luscious and colorful and easy to prepare, is fruit chantilly, made by making a meringue of 2 egg whites and 4 tbsps. of powdered sugar. Fold into this 2 cups of any fruit; such as raspberry, strawberry, if desired. And, don't forget the old-time favorite that belies its bread and butter foundation, called fruit surprise. This can be made with any fresh fruit, such as raspberries, blueberries, plums, cherries, peaches, strawberries.

Cut a small loaf of stale bread into thin slices and spread with butter. Stew the berries, with sugar to taste, and add a little lemon juice to bring out the berry flavor. Put a layer of the bread in a deep dish, and pour over it no more of the berries and juice than the bread will absorb. Continue in this way until both the fruit and bread are used up. Cover the dish and set in the refrigerator for five hours. Unmold and serve with sweetened whipped cream.

This dessert can be made without cooking, with a fruit which has a large proportion of moisture, if allowed to stand for a longer time in the refrigerator. We made a delicious raspberry surprise at our cooking school in this way.

Among the vegetables on the market, we have those that can be eaten raw, made up into delightful salads, such as cabbage, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, lettuce, radishes scallions, tomatoes, etc., and then there are those first-of-the-season native vegetables—squash, beets, turnips—which can be prepared in a number of ways, but which are most delightful simply cooked and seasoned with salt, pepper and butter.

The downward trend of meat prices which we noticed a week ago has not continued, and we recommend lamb, chicken, fowl and broilers for the week-end purchase. Ham is an excellent investment, for it provides many more than just the original meal, and always can be made up into a platter of cold meats, to serve with salads for a quick warm-weather meal.

Fish markets are offering lobster at a few cents less than it has been. For variety, serve salmon, swordfish, sea scallops and fresh shrimp, selling at reasonable prices.

GOLD TOO OLD
Fashioned Now

Ithaca, July 19 (AP)—A ore stable measure of value than the old-fashioned gold standard "appears to of democracy," Dr. George F. Warren told the American Institute of Cooperation today.

He argued for a managed currency kept stable in terms of purchasing power through management of the price of gold. Adequate control of the price level under the fixed gold standard was not humanly possible, he said.

It's Fun Like This if You Win in Treasure Hunt

Fun! Excitement Treasure!

All coming next Sunday at Paragon Park in the Boston Sunday Advertiser Treasure Hunt!

But no one will have to dig up the earth, tear off boards or look in other inaccessible places for this treasure. All the prizes will be in easily sought-out places, and you may be rubbing against the hiding places of some.

Treasure certificates will be placed in envelopes and on each of the certificates will be marked the prize for the finder.

Several five and ten dollar bills are among the cash awards, as well as many strip tickets for all the amusements in the park and round-trip rides on the Nantasket steamboat.

All anyone has to do to join the Treasure Hunt and participate in the rewards is to clip out the certificate from the Boston Sunday Advertiser next Sunday and go to Paragon Park. Nothing will be hidden in flower beds.

The certificate in the Sunday Advertiser is necessary. Should you be lucky and find a treasure certificate hidden at Paragon Park, take the two certificates to the Administration building and cash in.

Whatever you win will be plainly marked on the certificate that you find, but you must have both certificates in order to get your prize.

OPEN SATURDAY EVENING — Out of the High Rent District

Desert Heritage

By P. C. Wren

Author of Beau Geste

SENOR MANOEL MAINE was in doubt. With soft and cat-like tread, he paced the floor of his sitting room in the famous old Bluff King Hal, that has stood for upward of three hundred years on the road to Brandon Regis, not far from the main entrance gate of Brandon Abbas.

The girl and her half-brother were both at Brandon Abbas. Whom should he tackle first?

The girl, undoubtedly, and for several reasons.

Should he write, should he telephone, or should he call?

His natural hardihood and ingenuative impulse to take the bull by the horns or the cow by the tail, led him to prefer the bold course.

"It would be splendid fun to drive up the avenue, haul on the great bell-chain that he had seen when he reconnoitred the place, send in his card, and march into the house unbidden—with as much assurance as he had walked into Vane Court, on Lady Drusilla's invitation.

That was an idea too. Make the girl invite him there. Insist on it. That'd be a situation—to settle down there in Brandon Abbas and twist the tails of the men, and the womad, with the threat of twisting that of the youth, if they didn't jump to his word of command.

Danger Ahead

Let the man Vanbrugh know that the time had come for him to scoup-up a little on account; have a long talk with the girl when the brat had gone to bed; find out about the date of the wedding, and let her know that, quite independently of her brother's little account, it was time she started contributing too.

ON the other hand, once inside that ancient dwelling-place, part modern house, part medieval monastery, part ancient castle, he certainly would be well inside the lion's den, his head in the lion's jaws.

And Vanbrugh looked as though he might be a bit of a lion too when roused. And one had to remember that the fellow had not only served in the French Foreign Legion but in a Penal Battalion too.

Something of a tough guy undoubtedly. No ordinary law-abiding English country-gentleman.

And the girl, a devil incarnate, once really roused. She'd shoot you or stick a knife in you as soon as look at you.

No; it wouldn't be the act of a really sensible man, actually to go and stay in the place.

He might go to bed in great peace and comfort one night and wake up in Heaven, where, on the best authority, earthly treasure is without value.

Save for that, it would be great fun. Really and truly amusing.

But it would be a beastly experience to have one's treasure-ship, when one's ship came home, and one had arrived safely in port with a real treasure-galleon.

Besides, apart from any question of plain murder—and in an English country house, even Vanbrugh and his woman might stop short of that—there was always the risk of an argument, or a little homily from Spanish Maine flaring up into a row, and of a sudden quick shooting putting an end to all his hopes—nay, certainties—of happiness and success.

So one had to be careful. One had to walk warily.

Caution Needed

NEVER given to wavering, mind-changing indecision, he nevertheless looked ahead and thought out the strategy and tactics of his campaign quite a good chess-player, considered all the implications, connotations and effects of his moves.

Well he knew, none better, that the victim of blackmail must not be driven to that point where fear and detestation of the blackmailer and his extortion equals or exceeds fear of the public shame of his shameful or dangerous secret.

Well he knew, none better, that a blackmailer defied is a blackmailer impotent; that directly the victim of blackmail says

"Go and do your damnedest about it from the house tops; put it in the newspapers," the game is up; and the utmost that is left to the blackmailer is the poor comfort and pleasure of the petty revenge of doing as his victim says.

And that's no good at all; cuts no ice whatever.

What he has got to do, and what he does do, if he knows his business, is to lead the victim on; to show how much better a small payment is than the great horror of exposure; and gradually to increase his demands, once the fly is in his spider-web.

And this case must be handled with the utmost care and with all his great skill.

It was a splendid case. He'd never heard of one better. For he was in a position literally and completely to blast and destroy the happiness, the social security, the fair name, and the whole future, of one of the most prominent, widely-known and admired young men of that part of the world; in a position to drive him from the electric society of which he was an ornament, and from the very famous Regiment to which he belonged.

NOW, if anything at all was certain in this uncertain world, it was that this extremely wealthy youth would part with a very considerable portion of his riches before his would suffer social death and extinction; and when you add to that the fact that he was desperately in love, and that the same blow that destroyed his life would shatter his love-romance, well, the position was a pretty strong one.

No Rough Stuff

And the beauty of it was that all that was in reserve; yes, was what Le Milieu and all the other great Financial Trusts call the Reserve Fund.

And that need not be tapped, in fact must not be tapped, for many a long day. Not until the last sovereign, dollar, peseta, franc had been squeezed from the other two.

They'd pay and pay and pay—and then some—before they'd lose their new-won position in English society; before she would lose her lover; lose her stabilized position—solid as a rock, so long as she was amenable to the desires of Manoel Maine.

Yes, desires. A good word in this connection. A very desirable hourí—as she had always been.

Oh, Sir Harry Vane! What a tale we could tell you, eh?

"Yes," chuckled Spanish Maine aloud, "I look forward to the day when I have a private and heart-to-heart talk with my Fourth Woman."

BUT meanwhile the girl would need, not exactly careful handling—he wasn't going to be careful with the little devil—but reasonable handling. The screw must not be put on too violently.

She must not be terrified. He mustn't let her get anywhere near the desperate situation, the frame of mind, in which she should begin to scream and tear her hair and say

"Oh! Go and tell him . . . I'll see you in Hell before I'll give you anything! . . . Go and tell him! I'll tell him myself before you get there, and I hope he'll put a bullet through your head."

No, there must be no rough stuff of that sort.

But at the same time she must clearly understand that he'd got her; that it was no good to wriggle, squirm, struggle; that she'd to pay; and that she might as well look pleasant and be pleasant . . . kind . . . complaisant. Yes, pleasant and complaisant.

And anyway, what was the good of all this girl and boy stuff, this highfalutin stuff. She knew that he knew what she'd been—and what she was.

She knew that he knew that she'd hooked a couple of mugs, first Vanbrugh and now Vane. So what was the good of acting the virtuous one to him?

Silly! And what was more, he wouldn't stand it. Why couldn't the girl come off it? Act sensibly and . . . come in with him?

AFTER all, how was she better than any common gun-moll? If he had no objections to her calling him a gangster, a gunman, and a crook, what objection could she have to his calling her a gun-moll and bidding her behave as such?

Besides, he wasn't a gangster. He was a lone wolf, which was a very much superior thing. A gangster, forsooth!

He, Manoel Maine of Cadiz University, and a hidalgo of Spain! Though, as to "gangster," what's in a phrase?

He could use, and he had used, a little gun as well as anybody. But that didn't make him a gunman in the common use of the phrase. And as for crook, well, Carl Blanchfleur should talk! What had been her last dealings with him? A fly-by-night jilting.

And, por Dios, that should be the very first thing that she made good, before any question arose of what she and her brother should pay by way of what they'd call blackmail.

She should pay him the kisses that she owed him.

She should keep her love-bargain.

According to their agreement for which he'd paid handsomely—she'd had no right to leave him until his caravan was ready, and he himself left Bouzen.

He'd paid for her company, and he was of the sort that gets what it pays for.

Ah, por Dios, before anything else she should pay for what she had stolen. Repay what she had cheated him of, both in money and in—kisses.

Knit Suit With Gored Skirt

By ANNICE BRINK

HERE IS a tweed knit which has all the svelte lines Fall 1935 demands . . . and we'll skip lightly over the very smart scarf-filled neckline, the fitted jacket, to that highly important feature, the flared skirt. Not only is it most fashionable, not only is it perfectly swell for figures that are unmercifully treated by straight skirts with nip-in tendencies, but it will keep its lines forever after, with no sags or bulges, because you'll never wear it twice in quite the same position. You may have knitting directions for the two-piece suit and scarf, and information on the beautiful tweed yarn by writing to Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Boston Evening American, and inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

When Romance Takes a Holiday, Be Sure Love Means Business

By MARGUERITE MOORS MARSHALL

LOVE takes a holiday every summer, along with most of the rest of us.

A good rule for girls to remember is that no man should be held responsible for what he says in a canoe, drifting across a moonlit lake.

Men likewise ought to keep in mind that what a girl murmurs in the shadows of a rose-scented garden is off the record on the morning after—and every morning after that.

Along with sunburn lotion, all sentimental lads and lasses ought to apply daily a one-line prescription which is the only sure preventive of summer heart disease: "Don't let 'em kid you—and don't kid yourself!"

Nature abhors a vacuum, and making love is the easiest way to fill vacation leisure.

If only both sides will realize that a summer sport is having its innings, all will be well. But if either boy or girl labors under the delusion that the object of a swell line is necessarily matrimony, then there will follow tears, tantrums, tribulation.

Suppose that on your vacation you are rushed off your feet by an irresistible charmer of the opposite sex—it can happen!

How can you tell whether this is the One Love of Your Life with whom you may ankle to the altar?

There is an extremely simply test—as elementary as the litmus paper in chemistry, which acids turn red and alkalines blue. Does he ask you to marry him? Or, if she's a lady, does she say "yes" when you ask her?

This is the proof that love means business. Nothing else counts.

When an English beauty recently brought a heart balm suit against a peer of the realm, the judge cautioned the jury as follows.

"A man doesn't promise to marry merely by saying.

"'You are the sweetest girl I ever met.'

"A woman doesn't promise to marry by saying.

"'You are the most adorable, most desirable, most lovable man I ever met.'"

How many gullible girls, how many naive young men would escape the feeling that they had been cheated if they would check their own ardors by these cautious after-thoughts!

Meanwhile, my best tip is never to take a summer sweetheart seriously.

Then if he, or she, should stage an autumn follow-up, you'll have a pleasant surprise—not the regretful kind.

On Giving PORTRAIT IN A Frame

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1—Is it proper for a man to give his girl a photograph of himself already in a frame? 2—Is it proper to wear an artificial corsage to an afternoon tea and to a high school prom?

T. and B.

1—There isn't anything really improper in giving a framed photograph to a friend—but it does presuppose a great degree of friendship, since the giver presupposes that we wish to keep the photograph "in public view."

2—Artificial flowers are so much worn this season as decorative touches to a costume, for day wear or for evening wear, that they have become an accepted style note. If her beau sends the girl a corsage of real flowers for her to wear to her prom, then she should omit the artificial flowers.

WISHES TO MAKE AMENDS

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. I am a girl of 17, and I have been going about with a young man who is especially nice, well-dressed, and has a fine disposition. And I like him very much. We have never had a quarrel until the other evening.

But I think that I was to blame for it, or at least for most of it, and I think that I made a great mistake to start a quarrel with such a good friend.

I did not mean to make him angry, but you know there are two sides to every question. Now do you think that I should write to him and apologize for the mistake I made?

2. If you think that it is proper for me to write a letter to him, would it need be a long one, or as short as possible? Please tell me how to write a friendly, courteous letter asking him to come to my home again. And what kind of paper is it proper to use?

3—Do you think that this quarrel is an everlasting one, or do you think that it was just a "little love spat,? He has given me presents and taken me many places. Are these things usually considered in a quarrel?

4—Is it proper for a girl to give a young man a birthday present? And if it is, what would you suggest as appropriate?

LONELY.

1—If you really think that you were more or less to blame in this misunderstanding, it would be honest and straightforward for you to write this friend and say that you are sorry.

It certainly can't do any harm for you to be gracious and generous-minded about this—and it may do a great deal of good in re-establishing the friendship that you value so highly.

2—Your note needn't be long—indeed, it would be best not to have it long. And, for the note, use unruled letter-paper, double-sheeted and white.

Never, for any kind of letter, use the kind of ruled paper that you used in your letter to me.

With your own good reading and grown-up handwriting, you needn't use the kind of paper that children have to use to "keep the lines."

Your letter might be worded in the beginning.

Dear Jim:

I am sorry that I was so hasty-tempered the other evening—and I apologize for my misinterpretation of what you said. It was very unmannerly of me, and it should teach me to be gracious and understanding. Will you please be so kind as to accept my apology?

I hope to see you soon, so that we may "iron out" this ridiculous misunderstanding.

Best wishes and friendliest greetings.

Most sincerely.

3—I am sure that, with the fine basis that the friendship so obviously has, this cloud won't remain.

I am sure, too, that, with an honest apology, there will be a "rainbow 'round your shoulder" soon.

4—It's proper for a girl to give a boy a birthday present, so long as it is some trifle, something that is inexpensive and not "consequential."

A book is always an excellent present, a carton of his favorite cigarettes or some desk accessory.

Judging from what you say about presents in your letter, I believe that you are too apt to accent this side of your friendship. Better not do that lady! It's dangerous. Presents don't count—it's the spirit in a friendship that will last.

Fashion Flashes

NEW ROMPERS are made of plaid gingham or seersucker, and consist of a brassiere halter top and the briefest possible shorts, tied down each side and leaving the hips partly exposed.

There also is a six-inch strip of skin between brassiere and shorts, revealed to sun, wind and onlookers.

The Poncho beach suit also has arrived on fashionable sands, consisting of a loose shirt of coarse homespun linen in peasant stripes, extending below the skirt and belted at the waist, slits at each side revealing dark shorts beneath.

This is worn with a wide-brimmed beach hat of chip straw, usually trimmed with matching pompons.

Hair Remover

POSED BY NORITA MORENO

By THE BEAUTY EDITOR

NOTHING IS left undone for beauty—not in these days when you can bask on the beach under a caressing sun, swim in the moonlight, play hard and fast at tennis or golf—and still look your radiant loveliest.

This is one time when you can have your holiday—and your beauty, too. For months now we have been heralding the appearance of all sorts of mad, delightful things to tuck away in your suitcase when you go week-ending.

Creams to take the redness and pain out of sunburn . . . oils to magically lift away the network of squint lines under the eyes . . . astringents to restore and strengthen weakened muscles . . . lotions to give your face a "lift" after a hot day in the sun.

Most exciting perhaps, of all, is a brand new herbal hair remover that is being introduced to Boston for the first time. Quickly, painlessly, without any pain at all it banishes hair instantly and completely—roots and all—from arms, legs and upper lip.

If wax depilatories are too much trouble, and if you agree that "shaving" the hair out discourages the growth in time, then you'll be happy to learn of this new instantaneous remover which comes in the form of a fragrant, delightful cream.

This extraordinary depilatory is a scientific compound of pure, fragrant herbal ingredients. It is not a wax, nor an evil-smelling chemical. This discovery is the work of a German scientist who spent years of experimentation before it was ready for the market.

The cream is spread over the skin area as you would a wax. Small flannel strips come with it, and you press these over the cream smoothly and firmly for a minute only. Then you pull them off. There is no pain and the skin is left as soft and smooth as a baby's.

Hair removed in this manner should not appear again for weeks, so one or two applications should be sufficient during the summer months of exposure. It is most reasonable in price, too.

To learn the name of this marvelous new herbal hair remover for arms, legs and upper lip, call Miss Shelby, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope

Question: Can you tell me where I can get a chin strap, as I have a double chin and am past forty. My face and neck are beginning to sag. Do cold creams promote the growth of hair on the face?

Boston. Constant Reader.

Answer: You can get a chin strap in almost any of the large downtown department stores. They vary in price from 50 cents to $5.00. There is a new silk-filled elastic chin supporter which gives adequate support to muscles and tissues at night and during rest periods. It is most inexpensive. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the name of this chin strap. Trade names are never mentioned in this column. I have never heard of a good cold cream or cleansing cream promoting growth of facial hair.

Question: Can you tell me how I can take off moles without the use of the electric needle? Dorchester Reader.

Answer: When warts appear on the hands there are many different agents that may be tried for their removal, but should they be on the face or neck the treatment must be different, and experiments should not be made. It is not wise to experiment on yourself, for scars often result. Colorless iodine will sometimes remove warts. To use it the spot must be touched morning and night. This application may, after several days, make the roughness peel. It will not have much effect, however, if the trouble is deep-seated. Better consult a reliable skin specialist if you want to remove them from your face. It is the only safe way.

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

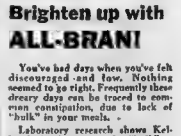

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently these dreary days can be traced to common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in your meals.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentler—and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX and NELL BRINKLEY

Why Marry At All if It's Not "For Keeps?"

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHEN YOU WALK up the church aisle on your father's arm, while the organ swells out the resounding measures of Lohengrin and the groom is waiting for you at the chancel, my blessing on you—if you are in earnest and expect to stay married for keeps.

But if you have in mind some silly present-day nonsense to the effect that "I'm willing to try anything once," as a good many girls have written me when not sure of their own feelings, I sincerely hope you will not go on with the experiment, even if you have bought your trousseau.

If you're getting married because you're bored and restless, and it is the possibility of divorce in secretly well-lodged in your own brain, even previous to the sounding of the marriage bells—I've really very little sympathy for you.

Divorce is often necessary, even as a surgical operation is necessary. Legal separation has been a life-saving device for many a suffering man or woman, and will, of course, continue to be. But divorce as a pastime leaves me distinctly cold.

DANGER AHEAD

This little homily which you are getting today has been brought about by a letter which came in this morning's mail:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"At last I have decided to get married, because I'm 26 years of age, and it seems to me the proper thing to do.

"I'm not really in love, but I hate to be the only one of our crowd left stranded in the spinster group. As I hate to miss all the fuss and feathers of a nice wedding, I'm taking the plunge in ivory satin and a veil, and I dare say Dad will be enchanted to offer me his arm on the way to the altar. At home, they seem to think I've hung on for a long time.

"I'm a very modern girl, and have had several chances to marry. I've never been in love in my life, but I have a feeling it's now or never, and I'm willing to try anything once. If I don't like being married, there is always Reno.

"Do you think I shall regret all the wild, harum scarum parties I've been going on, since I was 18 years of age? Or do you think, when a girl is 26, that it's high time she settles down?

"NONIE B."

Some people really never do settle down, my dear Nonie, and if you're one of that kind, do you think it's quite honest to marry a steady young man who will expect the real home that only a good wife can give him?

JUST AN EXPERIENCE?

If he's the same kind of butterfly that you are—and you've neglected to tell me that—your matrimonial experiment, I suppose, doesn't make much difference either way. But if he's a decent chap, who's expecting domesticity, a well-kept house, and children, are you really being quite fair to him?

There are signs that this country, as a whole, is swinging 'round to the old-fashioned point of view that divorces are not necessarily the road to happiness, and that the practice of divorce by wholesale is really declining.

Young couples are beginning to think it over, you see, before rushing to the courts. They're beginning to suspect that the fault is often on both sides, rather than on one side alone. Before marrying, they are making sure as they can be that marriage must have a solid basis of love and understanding.

BOTH MUST WATCH THEIR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Just for fun I kissed a married man one day, whom I have known for a long time. We never have been interested in each other, and just kid one another along. But since that kiss he has been trying to date me. I am happily married, and never thought at the time I kissed him that he would get a wrong impression of me. I never did anything like this before and am greatly troubled about it.

THANK YOU.

As you are happily married, it would certainly be a mistake to accept the date from this married man. If he got a wrong impression of you from a kiss, he'd probably get a doubly wrong impression if you accepted the date. You're happy; why not let well enough alone? Turn him down.

VACATION . . . . . When Strangers Meet

By Nell Brinkley

Sometimes -- They Lead To Weddings!

SOMETIMES . . . it ends in a wedding! When strangers meet on vacations.

Last Sunday I swung in my green hammock, with the green lace of dog-woods overhead, and got lost in the Vacation-Travel Section

I went to the snows of Glacier Park. I rode a stout cow-pony through the sage and sniffed again the welcome sweetness of my own foot-hill air. I went on cruises to pirate isles, and danced to all orchestras that a pirate never heard. I walked on the walls of old Quebec, and tried my French on little, gay, dark-eyed boys.

Over this country of ours I roamed. I seemed to have plenty of time and money. I walked in the cathedral-gloom of the Big Trees. I motored in Southern California, and picked my own limes and oranges for my drink. I swam in the tea-kettle water off Virginia Beach, and sailed off the rocks of Cape Breton Island. I sat on the top of Long's Peak.

And everywhere I went I saw ROMANCE for the young, and even the near young. And happiness and play for all, of course. But romance for the man and the woman, the boy and the girl. Romance around every bend of the road; behind every forest-tree bole; on every green wave; in every strain of music; high on the mountain—low on every gold and silver strip of sand.

WHAT a lovely love-story is the Vacation-Travel Section! NELL BRINKLEY.

A DAUGHTER IN THE WAY

By RUTH AYRES

What would you do, I wonder, were you a young widow with a beloved daughter of 16, who had taken a violent dislike to the man whom you wished to take for a second husband?

"Niobet," who writes to me on this problem, says that the girl's intense antagonism toward this man amounts almost to a mania; that she will not stay in the room when he is there, and that once she even went so far as to run away from home and stay out all night as a protest to his friendship with her mother.

Apparently the man is a good fellow in every way, and cares deeply for the mother of this difficult young woman, who wishes to marry him, but is torn between her affections for him and her great love for her daughter.

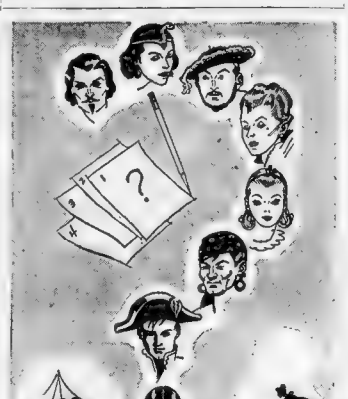

If I were Niobet I should marry the man I loved, daughter or no daughter. If possible I would send the girl away, perhaps for some time, either to friends or kind relations, in the hope that she would grow more reasonable.

For, after all, in spite of the old saying that "my daughter's my daughter all my life," I hardly think it holds good in these modern times.

HEADDRESS PARTY FOR SUMMER NIGHTS

GUESS WHO they are?

Famous people from the pages of history and fiction? Napoleon? Alice-in-Wonderland? No, just the guests at a jolly party. They've come with their heads in costume. The trick is to guess what characters they represent.

Why not invite your "gang" to this delightful kind of a party. Tell them to dress their heads to represent well-known characters from history, fiction, or cartoons; celebrities from politics or the Study the movie folk before deciding on your headdress. See what remarkable transformations they accomplish by make-up and hair dress. You can also use wigs, hats, hair ornaments, and earrings.

Heads Only in Costume.

Only the heads of your guests are in costume, and after arriving, no one gives away a disguise by talking or acting like the character represented.

Give every one a numbered tag. Let the crowd examine and comment on the various headdresses (that's half the fun). Then have each one write on a slip of paper the character he thinks each tagged person represents. The name and character of the writer is added at the end of his list. Of course a prize goes to the clever person with the greatest number of correct guesses.

Keep the fun going by giving a dark-eyed friend a gypsy headdress. Let her tell fortunes that suit the make-believe characters of your guests. (For instance, our girl with the Egyptian headdress would have a modern fortune based on Cleopatra's glamorous life.)

When there is a pause in the hilarity, set your guests doing Card Flip. Put a man's old hat on the floor. Give the players four oldest deck of cards and let them see how many each one can pitch into the hat from a distance of 15 feet. Sounds easy, but just try it.

It's a party like this that makes your friends say, "We had such a wonderful time." Have more of them. Our popular Home Institute booklet, GOOD PARTIES, is packed with ideas for gay, good times. Just see, from this sample of the contents, why it's such a grand aid to entertaining:

LILLIAN PLAYS AN ACE IN GAME

CHAPTER 399

THERE WAS distinct wariness in Samuel Brixton's eyes as he drew up a chair at Lillian's invitation and sat down.

I knew that he was inwardly heeding the injunction concerning the Greeks bearing gifts, and remembering the night before, when Lillian had so scathingly accused him of eavesdropping.

She had warned him of what would happen to him, did any harm come to Marion through him, either directly, or indirectly.

She had finished her tirade with an injunction to let things appear as usual before the others, and both of them had kept that pact. But I knew that the big man was distinctly uneasy at the unusual show of friendliness.

"Have you and Helena anything on for the next week-end, Sam?" she began.

"Not a thing," he replied promptly, and although he did not utter the syllable "Why?" his eyes fairly shrieked the word.

"Then," Lillian said with apparent casualness, "why can't you come to us? Carolyn is coming home with Marion of course, and of course that means that Ronald and Bob will want to be here, too, for the birthday celebration. So what is the matter with you and Helena running down, too? Unless, of course, you think the opening of that rock box might bore you. We'll have to wait Lee Chow's convenience, of course, and that means we can't plan anything entertaining until the box is finished."

BATTLE OF WILLS

They were now eyeing each other as might a pair of fencers, and I felt my blood tingle at the combat of wills staged so close to me.

"What are you trying to do?" Sam Brixton said at last, and his voice was hoarse.

"Dad!" Ronald cried indignantly, taking a step forward, and as if the voice of the boy he adored brought him back from some far region of panic, he changed his manner immediately.

"I was wondering if you were trying to kid me, Lil," he said mildly. "I had supposed the opening of that box would be a ceremonial so hedged round with secrecy that an outsider might as well try to bust into a college fraternity initiation."

"And now that you've found out the difference, what do you say about coming down?" Lillian queried.

"HOW ABOUT HELENA?"

"Say!" he repeated. "I'll say you couldn't keep me away with a Gatling. I don't know of anything I'd rather do than see that box opened."

There was a ring of truth in his words, there was more than that in his face, the prospect of an avid curiosity about to be gratified, and something more, something which I could not analyze.

"What about Helena?" Lillian queried. "By all the rules of the etiquette books, I ought to have given her the invitation first."

"I can see Helen grousing over that," Helena's big husband said in fond derision. "If I know the old girl, and I ought to, she'll be tickled pink over the chance to come out and be in at the death when the box is opened. But I'll just run up and ask her, and come back and tell you."

He got to his feet and lumbered toward the door.

A NATURAL CURIOSITY?

"Just a second," Lillian said quickly. "There's a reason why none of us want Miss Fairfax to know that you're coming for the week-end, or even that we've invited you. Caution Helena, and be careful yourself, that no hint reaches her, or indeed, anyone beside your own family, that you're scheduled to arrive here. We're not planning to make the thing a public function."

"Of course not," he returned, "and I'll remember."

He went out of the door, and Ronald looked miserably at us. "What do you think?" he asked. "I thought for a minute there—"

Dicky clapped him smartly upon the shoulder. "Buck up, lad!" he said. "Of course we never can tell, but personally I think the only thing that ails your stepfather is what's ailing all of us, and that is an unbridled curiosity."

Ronald twisted abruptly out of his grasp and muttering something that sounded like "Bless you!" turned and fairly ran out of the door.

Shuffling Off to Buffalo

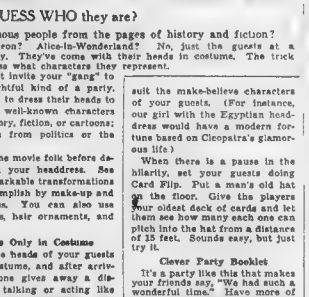

In most cases it does not make a great deal of difference in the play of a hand whether eight trumps in the hands of declarer and dummy are divided 4-4, 5-3 or 6-2.

Cases do arise, however, in which it is far more valuable to declarer for his own trump suit to be very long than for dummy to have nearly an even share of the trump strength.

The cases in which it pays declarer to have plenty of trumps in his own hand are those in which the opponents have an established suit, and it is necessary to stop that suit by ruffing their high cards.

The following interesting hand came up in the drawing room of a Pullman car. The players were on their way to a national Bridge tournament. Their bidding clicked as smoothly as the rattle of the wheels below.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 NT (1)	Pass
3 ◇ (2)	Pass	3 NT (3)	Pass
4 ♣ (4)	Pass	5 ◇ (5)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) For keeping the bidding open with a notrump response, it is not necessary to have strength in more than one suit if the hand contains one and one-half honor-tricks.

(2) This is a very aggressive bid—admittedly somewhat of an overbid.

(3) South's bid was semi-forcing, and North would not have been justified in passing it unless his one-notrump response had been decidely shaded.

(4) Now South shows the exact distribution of his hand; and at the same time he gives North a choice between game contracts in spades or diamonds.

Having bid diamonds twice before showing the spades, South has made it clear that he has six diamonds and only four spades.

(5) This is the bid which is the key to the hand.

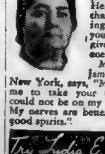

Whether or not North had psychic powers, or merely very keen analytical ability, I do not know; but he correctly surmised South would be very weak in hearts, and if the hand were played with South's four-card spade suit as trump, South would not be able to withstand the forcing heart leads to be expected from the opponents.

South succeeded in making five diamonds, justifying North's decision to play for a game in a minor instead of a major, and in a suit in which the dummy would hold only two trumps rather than a suit in which dummy had four cards.

The play at five diamonds was easy; West opened hearts, and South ruffed the second round; since the club finesse succeeded, the only trick to be given up later was to the King of diamonds.

In spades it would have been a different story; although only ten tricks would have been needed, South would have found himself ruffing hearts with the high spades in his hand, and later losing spade tricks in consequence.

Terror of the Tomb

The Man Who Dug for His Life to Escape Drowning

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO, EVERYBODY!

Here's the story of a man who dug his own grave—from the bottom up. He is Bernard F. Engelberger of 526 East 82nd street, New York city, and the only man in town who knows how it feels to be old King Cheops' mummy. After seeing for himself what sort of a life old Cheops led, moreover, he's satisfied to be just plain Bernard Engelberger. Being shut up in a tomb doesn't strike Bernie as being much fun—even for an Egyptian.

It was all Bernie's fault and he'll be the first to admit it. It happened this way. Back in the winter of 1905 Bernie got a job with Post & McCord, a construction company which was then laying the foundations for the Altman Building on Fifth avenue, New York City. They put Bernie on as gang boss, and since he'd had a good technical training and was able to read blueprints, they gave him an extra job setting foundation blocks with a leveling instrument.

Bernie had to work by fits and starts at that leveling job. All around the spot where he was setting the blocks the dynamite crews were blasting big hunks out of ridges of the blue granite rock that cover most of Manhattan Island, and every few minutes he had to drop what he was doing and run for cover while another charge went off. It got to be pretty tiresome after a while—especially since Bernie liked the work he was doing and wanted a chance to stick at it for a while without interruption.

Finally there came a time when Bernie decided he wasn't going to run for those blasts any more. The foundation block he was working on was set in a deep hole, and he figured that by lying down against the near side of the pit he would be safe from flying debris resulting from an explosion. So the next time the signal came to run for cover Bernie stayed right where he was.

It was Saturday—just before quitting time. The blast that was coming would be the last one until Monday morning. Bernie, crouched down in the pit, heard the boom of the dynamite and then, to his consternation, saw a big slab of granite turn up on one end like a door on its hinges, and plop down over the top of the hole in which he was lying.

It was as neat a trap as Bernie was ever in in his life. "I was lying on my stomach," he says, "and the legs of the leveling instrument, which was buried with me, prevented me from moving an inch. I yelled a couple of times, but no one answered, and then I remembered something that just about scared me stiff. It was Saturday—pay-off day. They wouldn't find me until Monday at the earliest, and I could suffocate in that hole in much less time than that."

Bernie twisted his body about and looked around him. At the dust subsided he could see, to his relief, a few cracks through which air was coming through. At least he wouldn't suffocate. But he had no sooner decided that when a new worry arose to plague him. It started to rain and water was seeping down into the pit where he lay. If he didn't get out of there he would be drowned like a rat in a trap!

For a minute he lay there in a stupor, wondering if this was to be the end of him. Then a trickle of water, tailing on his neck, aroused him, and looking up he saw something that caused new hope to spring into his breast. That water might be threatening his life, but it was also doing him a favor. For that little stream had shown him the weak point in his prison—the place where the cover was the thinnest.

Bernie reached into his breast pocket and found a little iron spike he used for adjusting his leveling instrument and began digging at the spot the water was trickling in. "It was hard work," Bernie says, "and after hours of digging I lost all track of the time. Every bone in my body ached, and all I could think of was Monday morning, when my co-workers would come down and get me out. I fell asleep once from sheer exhaustion and woke up hours later, to go back to work again with my spike. After what seemed to be days of digging, I finally struck a little hollow space and the rain must have loosened the dirt around my legs, for all of a sudden a cork fell on my back and I was able to move a bit.

"I must have fallen asleep again, then, for I woke up to find the hole half full of water. I went back at my digging then and had only worked a few minutes when a stream of water came shooting in that filled the hole up to my neck. Then I started to work in real earnest, trying to get out before I was drowned.

"By this time I was frantic. The hole I had dug was big enough to crawl out of, but I was pinned down so that I couldn't move. Finally I got hold of the upper part of the leveling instrument and using it as a lever was able to get my legs free. Then, leaving one shoe behind me, I crawled out of that hole. It was 4 a. m. Sunday morning when I got loose again. It had taken me 14 hours to get out of the pit. But maybe I was lucky to get out of it at all!"

Well, boys and girls, that's Bernie Engelberger's yarn—and now what have the rest of you adventurers been getting into? Send me that story of yours right now. Tomorrow I'll spin you another yarn. It's about a tug of war.

It's as easy as just reaching for it—and a heck of a lot more fun. That's what hundreds of Boston American readers say of the $10 and $100 bills they have received from headline-hunter Floyd Gibbons for their TRUE adventure stories. Floyd says everybody has had at least one thrilling experience, and he wants to write up yours. Send him the facts, and win a pocketful of dough, like Mrs. Henry W. Gould of Worcester, who drew a $10 check and a $100 prize.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWERS

HARTFORD

Obtains NEW BRAKE Industry

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Action has replaced talk in obtaining new industries for New England. Down in Hartford a group of prominent industrialists have announced plans to back the inventor of a new type hydraulic brake.

What we like about the idea is that it means a distinctly new industry for this section. It is not a case of transplanting. It is new to the point of creating. In the long run, the securing of such projects will mean a great deal in freshening and strengthening New England industrial life. It will further the future prosperity of this section as nothing else can. The establishing of Rockwell Products Company, to manufacture a line of oil hydraulic brakes, is, we hope, the first of a long line of new industries for New England.

Feature of the Gillette Safety Razor report was the announced intention of the company to redeem on October first the remaining $2,689,000 of the original $20,000,000 debenture issue. Whether this will be accomplished through a payment of money from the treasury or whether a short term loan will be made is not stated at this time. But whatever course is taken, the proceeding furnishes just one more example of the abundance of money. Money in the bank is not an asset. Interest rates have slipped to such low levels that it is almost a mandatory corporate investment policy nowadays to pay off debts.

Sidelights: The strong statement opposing sock-the-thrifty taxes by the Boston Chamber of Commerce was very well received . . . The point made on budget balancing is deserving of wide publicity and careful attention by the average taxpayer with a moderate bank account . . . If truly honest about balancing the budget political top hats will cut expenses . . . That is the painless way . . . And what a reception it would receive . . . The answer of course is that the whole program seems designed more for social reform than for fiscal efficiency . . . And as such it would accomplish nothing besides disrupting the present economic system.

Question of the week is, did the market acomplish the difficult feat of signalling an important resumption of the rise? As a whole it did not. Despite the excellent showing of industrials the rails and utilities leave much to be desired. What then are traders to make of the industrials? To our way of looking at the picture the truly careful trader will go on the theory that until the 123-125 area is safely cleared by the 30 industrial average caution must curb desires to plunge in and buy the list.

• • •

Shorts: This is not the time for over confident bulls to add to the jeopardy their position is naturally surrounded with after a four-months rise . . . And this they will do if they ever extend themselves now . . . The risks involved are out of proportion to the profit taking possibilities . . . Overly conservative views some might say . . . Yet the industrial average has had plenty of trouble since May 23 climbing from a high close of 116.81 to 123.41 yesterday . . . a matter of only 7 points.

Earnings Increase

American Brake Shoe & Foundry Co. and subsidiaries for the six months ended June 30 had net income of $773,688, equal to 72 cents a common share against $658,231, or 53 cents a share in the first half of 1934.

DIVERSE Trends in MARKET

SOME GOOD GAINS MADE

New York, July 19 — Scattered specialties exhibited quiet strength in today's stock market, but some of the recent leaders sagged under profit-taking.

Spiegel-May-Stern got up 2 points and others with gains of fractions to around a point included Motor Products, Glidden, Westinghouse, Case, Murray Corp., Radio preferred "B," Sears, Roebuck and International Harvester. Corn Products lost 3.

Among lesser losers were Union Pacific, Atlantic Refining, Amerada, Loew's, Chrysler, U. S. Steel and American Can. The late tone was irregular.

Outlook Good

Traders apparently were more concerned with the promising fall business outlook than with the doings at Washington and elsewhere.

Dun & Bradstreet reported that the midsummer season had started with the expected recession yet to develop to its usual degrees of intensity.

"In fact," the Weekly Trade Review stated, "the rebound of industrial operations, which was contrary to all normal trends, easily took precedence over other occurrences of the week, particularly because of the broadness of the increase when set alongside the comparative showing of a year ago."

Retail distribution, the survey added, continued to widen, with the heat wave accelerating previous gains, while the more rapid pace of wholesale buying reflected dwindling stocks and the improved prospects for fall.

A drop of $128,000,000 in member bank reserves was indicated by the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve System, but this was said to have been due primarily to cash payments made by banks for recent subscriptions to new Treasury obligations.

The British pound opened ⅜ of a cent easier at $4.95⅞ and the French franc was off .00⅜ of a cent at 6.63⅞ cents.

WOOL MARKETS Continue Spotty

While wool goods markets continue spotty, sales of women's wear fabrics are gaining and prices on many types of goods show a tendency to stiffen, says the New York Wool Top Exchange Service.

Men's wear markets have entered a lull from which they are expected to emerge in the next few weeks.

FORBES EXPLAINS

Stock MARKET Rise

By B. C. Forbes

Average prices for stocks yesterday reached the highest level of the year.

This news is important to and has significance for not only owners of corporation stocks: it constitutes a commentary on national conditions and national sentiment in responsible places.

This demonstration of confidence is not directly due to any substantial improvement in corporation earnings during the second quarter of the year. In fact, judging by reports already issued, profits last quarter don't compare very favorably with those earned a year ago.

What is the real explanation for rising stock prices?

Intimate contacts with many men of affairs prompt this answer:

Brain trusters and new dealers have shot their bolt, in the opinion of an increasing number of responsible citizens.

The courts are nullifying one unconstitutional legislative measure after another.

Public sentiment has veered strongly towards Americanism and away from all sorts of revolutionary experiments spawned by alien dictators.

Law-makers have begun to respond to this change among their constituents, as revealed by repeated refusals to jump at the crack of President Roosevelt's whip.

Industrialists are heartened by the buoyancy exhibited by trade in most parts of the country.

Various heavy industries are likewise showing fresh strength.

In short, the conviction has been and is growing that the "emergency" excuse for enacting all sorts and conditions of un-American legislation and decrees and taxation has passed and that from now on Americans will insist upon greater adherence to the American constitution and American ways of doing things. Also, that brain trusters will not be permited to annihilate state rights.

Another line of reasoning now offered by business leaders is that President Roosevelt, by going back on his repeated declaration that he would not recommend tax increases, has brought home to the people some faint idea of the magnitude of the public debt which has been incurred and which will have to be shouldered by and by.

"Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man's labor because they are a burden on production and can be paid only by production. If excessive, they are reflected in idle factories, tax-sold farms, and end in hordes of the hungry tramping the streets and seeking jobs in vain."

Guess who is responsible for that statement? Franklin D. Roosevelt —during his 1932 campaign.

All in all, the American people appear to be determined to return towards normalcy and to insist that Washington do the same.

Pay the Veterans!

THE Administration's mistreatment of the veterans in the matter of the bonus still rankles. It must be corrected.

Why not now?

The President's little sermon on economy, which checked the Senate when on the point of agreeing to the payment of the bonus, was too grisly a piece of irony for anyone to indulge in.

As Mr. Hearst said at the time:

"If the Government were embarking upon a policy of rigid economy, in an honest effort to balance the budget, there would be some reason in the argument that this large amount of money should not be paid to the veterans at this time."

And then he added with equal truth:

"But the Government has no intention of embarking on an economical policy.

"There has never been a time in the history of this extravagant Administration when it was more disposed to be extravagant than it is today."

To his question—"Why merely be penurious toward the veterans?"—there is absolutely no answer.

No explanation except INCONSISTENCY and HYPOCRISY!

THE Government is not creating a new obligation in paying the veterans the promised bonus.

It has pledged itself to that program.

"Some time or other," as Mr. Hearst says, "it is going to pay the veterans this money," and he asks, "Why not pay it now when it is most needed? Why wait until later when the Government might have no money with which to discharge the obligation, as is very likely if it keeps on at its present rate of extravagance?"

As State Commander Edward Walsh of the Disabled American War Veterans told his comrades at the New Haven convention this week:

"Since the Government has gone on an orgy of money-spending, I think that it is time the veterans should be considered.

"I know of no better way to put to use the PWA fund than to pay off the veterans' adjusted certificates. The plan of paying the bonus out of this money meets with the hearty approval of both myself and my constituents."

THE veterans have A RIGHT to the payment of the bonus—not as an act of favoritism, but on the grounds of just and equal treatment.

EQUAL TREATMENT—with all other classes of our citizens who are sharing and profiting, almost to their heart's desire, in the excited, insensate and open-handed scattering of the national wealth and income now going on.

The veterans are a body of loyal and DESERVING Americans.

But they DON'T DESERVE the shabby treatment they are receiving at Washington!

The Red Shirts
"Play Away!"

The old handtubs that averted many a conflagration in New England years ago are out again for glory.

Many towns and cities will send their "Red Shirts" and equipment to Portland, Me., for tomorrow's 44th annual muster of the New England States Veteran Firemen's League.

The best play ever made in New England was on April 19, 1910, at Avon.

The honor was won by the Hancock handtub of Brockton with a stream of 263 feet, seven inches.

Competitors at Maine's "second capital" will "play away" for a new mark. We wish 'em the best of luck!

Nice Big Apples
For New England

New England is happily hailing forecasts of a good apple crop.

Estimated as likely to exceed that of 1934 by 50 per cent, it is seen as bringing good times to many of the apple-growing districts.

While regarded as old-fashioned down Washington way, the horn of plenty still has a high place here.

Perhaps the difference in opinions is due to the realization a destructive policy would never have aided the original founders of New England.

Scarcity was their enemy and bumper crops the signal for thanksgiving.

Still a Racket
It Hasn't Changed

An intolerable racket.

So Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin calls the compulsory auto insurance law.

He is NOT the first to say it.

Year after year the motorist pays the freight of the racket in the form of higher rates.

The present Legislature has "plans" to correct this condition.

Conflicting ideas and sectional privilege crop up.

It is plain that REPEAL would save Massachusetts motorists from further gouging at higher rates in 1936.

Washouts Wreak Havoc!

By Nelson Harding

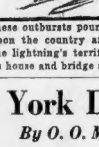

These outbursts pour a deluge down
Upon the country and the town.
The lightning's terrifying play,
As house and bridge are washed away.

The torrents ever wider sweep,
As track and road are covered deep,
Combine to make the victims fear
That angry skies may never clear.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 18—Thoughts while strolling: Dudley Field Malone suggests the rubicund, portly fellow on the Worcestershire sauce bottle. I had a sort of Walt Disney idea of Noah until a recent study of Genesis. Never talked to anyone who understood business so well as Thomas Watson.

O. O. McIntyre

Look alikes: T. Markos Robertson, society fellow, and Osgood Perkins. The eternal juvenile—Oscar Shaw.

No one has equaled Roxy's flair for the spectacular in movie shows. Or Gil Boag's 1922 night club polish. Grandest of the current mimics: Norma Terriss. What became of Ray Goetz?

Add frequent dinner companions: Jos. P. Kennedy and Herbert Bayard Swope. At 80, Irving Caesar should be a ringer for Joe Weber. The boardwalk ban loses the dog owner trade for Atlantic City. What long eyelashes Jim Flagg has. Nobody wears royal blue so becomingly as Margaret Whiteman.

Overcoat Bill wearing his six overcoats the year around and picking up pins. Bud Keiland, who never wrote a suggestive line in his life, is the reputed ace in popularity in the fiction field. Celebrities a cinch to caricature: Alexander Woollcott, Edna Ferber, Harold Ross and Bob Sherwood, the playwright.

Made up simile: "His confidence in women was as pathetic as a sailor home from a three years' cruise." Bob Garland and Will Hays could swap ears and no one would notice. Lesser enthusiasms: No. 2—Bob LaFollette. A lady inquires:

"What do you mean arabesque?" You'll die at this one. Esque me another?

Out of the William Lyon Phelps' story bag: A female admirer of Einstein, strolling with him in the evening said:

"Isn't Venus beautiful up there in the sky tonight?" He said: "It isn't Venus, it's Jupiter." She replied: "O, Prof. Einstein, aren't you wonderful to even know the sex of stars!"

And, alas, how many adventurous glances from admiring males, the eyes of a pure and beautiful maid have to dodge along the streets. I noticed one yesterday in the new lampshade hat trip down the steps of the Plaza for a turn into the avenue.

She had, like so many of her sisters, cultivated the art of apparently seeing nobody. Yet I felt certain there was not one glance she missed. Not even mine.

I have a friend who is an European correspondent. In his most confidential letters he underlines his u's and overlines his n's. As though to be ready for the printer of his Life and Letters!

Louis Bromfield in a literary magazine manifesto trumpets the hand-picked dinner parties of Edna Ferber. To his notion they are the peak in charm, hospitality and excellent food. They are prepared by a colored cook, Rebecca Henry.

At Miss Ferber's the guests are as good as the food and a high light of such an adventure in dining is the presence of Mrs. Julia Ferber, the writer's mother.

The two are inseparable. Among distinguished that may be found at her festal board now and then are Noel Coward, Jed Harris, Marc Connelly, the George S. Kaufmans, Harold Ross, Alexander Woollcott, Margaret Pulitzer and Dorothy Parker.

I wonder how many others feared their grandfathers. One of mine was kindly but gruff. Once he thought he mislaid his glasses. He had me looking for them and I ran about like a headless thing.

Finally he took me to task for not observing what he discovered: that he was wearing them all the time, pushed up. The fact was I was always too scared to look him in the face.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

THEY "DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER"

I wonder if any age has ever produced as many phoneys as this. Fakers in every line. Synthetic musicians, make-believe writers, bunko actors.

But commonest of all—the lads and lasses who pretend to be experts on the business of living, and who are making a profession of advising the rest of us.

Elsie Robinson

Thanks to the depression, these particular posts are thickin'n sand fleas. You can't move without running into one of them who'll immediately proceed to tell you why-you-aren't-what-you-should-be, and how to set about making yourself into something else.

All of which is quite diverting if you've a lot of time to waste. Or like hearing discourses on Exhibit A.

FITS THE TYPE

But as a practical tip on Getting Anywhere, it's worth exactly nothing. For the glib author of all this good advice usually knows less about living than a new laid egg.

Remember the old nursery rhyme—

"Mother, oh mother, may I go swim?
Yes, my darling daughter—
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb.
But don't go near the water!"

That jingle fits this type of pretender perfectly. To hear them tell it, there's nothing they haven't done—no sensation they haven't experienced—no peril they haven't risked.

And they can, without a second's hesitation, tell you exactly what you should do or feel under any given circumstance.

But if you try to follow their directions you'll be out of luck, for it hasn't the slightest bearing on reality. Said counsellors know all the right words and appropriate gestures.

But like "darling daughter" — THEY'VE NEVER GONE NEAR THE WATER.

HOW TO LEARN

There's only one way to learn about swimming and that is—by swimming.

You can "hang your clothes on the hickory limb" and loll on the beach, from now until eternity, yet be no wiser in the art of paddling at the end than you were when you started.

And by the same token, you can talk about life and write about life and advise about life till you're blue in the face.

But there's only one way you'll learn about actual living and that is—BY PLUNGING INTO THE TIDE YOURSELF. And that, believe me, Ignatz, is no pollycake party.

There's no education on earth that costs as much as a knowledge of life. Most of us suppose that we learn about living by the mere process of being born and existing thereafter, for a number of years, until we die.

This idea is 100 per cent wrong. We can exist for a hundred years and yet know almost nothing about life. We can even spend our days in the midst of excitement—have countless things happen to us and all around us—and yet remain as ignorant as turnips.

For turnips also are born, live and die—yet remain total dumbbells. And many humans remain equally dumb, for the same reason as the turnips. Namely—

THEY'RE ONLOOKERS

They have no stake in the big adventure. They run no risks—and make no experiments. They are onlookers, from first to last—only kibitzers in the big game.

You can't learn about living unless you live. You can't live unless you take a chance. And your living is limited by the chances you take.

You LIVE just as far and as deeply as you RISK and SUFFER—and not one particle more. For that reason, the advice of experts is valuable if, and only if, they have actually participated in the thing they're talking about.

No one can advise a farmer who hasn't done some actual farming himself.

He may hand out statistics or name reference books but he can't give any Straight Dope on the tiresome business of tackling dirt.

Nor can anyone advise the broken-hearted—or the deserted and shamed—who has not, in his own life, known rending grief and shame. Or that bitter bewilderment we call Sin.

So if you want to live yourself, or tell the other fellow about it, you've GOTTA GO NEAR THE WATER.

Otherwise, stranger, you're just another beach loller. Not worth the sand you're sitting on!

Isn't It So?

There is always a detour in the ways of life.

Better have a loving friend than ten admiring foes.

Courage respects courage.

The Great Pasteur

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

France this month celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of Louis Pasteur's discovery of his serum for rabies. Two months from now she will observe the fortieth anniversary of the death of Pasteur, her greatest scientist.

Edwin C. Hill

It was of him that the great Huxley of England said:

"Were it possible to calculate the wealth with which this man has endowed the world, we would see that the figure was greater than the war indemnity that France paid Germany in 1871."

Huxley today would revise that estimate, multiplying it a thousand times and more.

Pasteur is commonly known for the discovery of the vaccine which saves the lives of human being after the bite of a mad animal.

But in connection with his other discoveries, of the germs that infected the air, of the parasite that killed the silk worm and of the process of preserving wines and beers, it had been written "that he was not a doctor, yet he revolutionized the practice of medicine; he was not a manufacturer, yet he revolutionized the industry of the world."

BELOVED SCIENTIST

Pasteur is the beloved scientist. Admiration for the character of the man is as deep as the admiration of his work.

Born in poverty in 1822, he was the son of a sergeant-major of Bonaparte's army who had taken to the life of a tanner after Waterloo.

Mrs. R. L. Devonshire's translation of Rene Vallery-Radat's "Life of Pasteur" gives us the picture of the remarkable beauty of character which went hand in glove with the man's unparalleled scientific achievement.

Modest, tender-hearted, a tireless worker, he forgot himself entirely in his intense labor for humanity and he never benefited pecuniarily from his work.

In the book there is the letter he wrote to the young lady who was to be his bride and wife for almost fifty years:

"Time will show that below my cold, shy and unpleasing exterior there is a heart full of affection for you."

Time proved it, as it was to prove, too, that under that shy exterior there was a heart devoted warmly to his country and his fellow man.

TREATED BY PASTEUR

There was living in New Jersey, at least up until a few years ago, one W. T. Lane, a man in his sixties, who was one of the first four American children to be inoculated against rabies by Pasteur in Paris.

Mr. Lane told his story at the dedication of the Pasteur monument in Chicago:

"I was a messenger boy making my rounds on December 2, 1885, in Newark, when the mad dog bit me.

"Then the dog bit Patsy Joseph Reynolds, Eddie Ryan and Austin Fitzgerald, who were on their way to school. The mad dog was finally killed with an axe. Everybody thought we were going to die, because hydrophobia killed in every case.

"Dr. O'Gorman, a Newark physician, had heard of Pasteur's wonderful work and began collecting money to send us to Europe. We sailed on December 9, 1885, aboard the steamship Canada, accompanied by Eddie Ryan's mother and Dr. Frank Billings."

Mr. Lane told of their arrival in Paris and of being taken before a pleasant, smiling little man in a skull cap.

"I became frightened by the hypodermic needle," he said, "but he patted my head and spoke to me in French, which I did not understand.

"At the end of fourteen days we were cured and sent home. We received a great welcome and were swamped with theatrical offers.

"Dr. Billings told us that he wanted us all to become doctors. He did not want us to accept any of these offers. However, I guess most people needed the money because the four of us went to the old Globe Theater in New York for six weeks.

"We would stand up, show our scars and a man would explain how Pasteur cured us. Later our figures and Dr. Pasteur's were done in wax for the Eden Musee."

Public School Praised

IN Rabbi Edward N. Calisch of Richmond, Virginia, the American system of Public School education has found a champion worthy of the cause.

Speaking recently at the Institute of Public Affairs, meeting on the campus of the University of Virginia, this distinguished divine discussed the relation of Church and State in education with a clarity, sincerity, moderation and forthrightness that would have delighted the heart of Thomas Jefferson.

Subscribing wholeheartedly to the insistence of the founders and fathers of the American Nation upon the absolute separation of Church and State, Rabbi Calisch declared Judaism "believes that in Public School system lie the strength of the Republic and the building of its democracy."

Nothing, he said, should be permitted to contravene this principle or weaken the influence of the doctrine that under the American system of government Church and State are forever separate.

In the spirit of a true disciple of Thomas Jefferson, this defender of the American system of public education paid this eloquent tribute to the public school as the builder of citizenship which loyal American teachers will welcome the opportunity to read to their classes when the schools reopen:

"The public schools are the great melters of the various racial, national, cultural and lingual elements in the land.

"They are the nursery of Democracy, the training schools wherein the Democratic spirit of American institutions, and the broad tests of the civic equality upon which our government rests, are instilled into the minds and hearts of the children.

"In later life distinctions are made. In the professions, in industry, in the ballot box, at the bar of Justice, in the church, in social relations—wealth plays a dominant role, quite as much as between men, and class demarcations come into existence. But in the Public Schools the lines are not drawn. The poor and the rich, the laborer's lad and the millionaire's boy sit on the same bench. Cotton and silk sit side by side.

"Each pupil is rewarded according to his merit. There is no royal road to knowledge and torn ribbons may lead often sandals up the rugged hill of learning."

"The American people are a religious people," he insists, "and the government defends religion and the right to worship, however humble, to worship according to the dictates of his conscience."

Rabbi Calisch quoted from an address delivered by a Christian Bishop, Rt. Rev. William Lawrence of Massachusetts, a close friend of the first and of the present President Roosevelt in high praise of the Public School system.

"The Jewish position," said the Rabbi, coincides with this statement of Bishop Lawrence."

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

DEAR Mr. Hopkins:

As awful thing just happened, Mr. Hopkins, my Brother-in-Law has went & had a Collapse.

He knocked on I and my wife's door last night, and when Mabel opened the door he kind of Swooned on top of her, he says:

"Look out," he says, "I think I am going to faint."

Mabel give a Yelp and begun to hold him up the best way she could. I rushed to her rescue, and we hauled my Brother-in-Law in the bedroom & put him to bed.

He kind of laid there in a Stooper for a while, and didn't do nothing but groan. Mabel was real scairt, Mr. Hopkins, she rung her hands & says, "For Goodness Sake, what is the matter with you?"

"I got a Nervous Brakedown," he says, sort of groaning.

"What give it to you?" I asked him.

"Overwork," he says.

Well, Mr. Hopkins, my brother-in-law hasn't turned a hand since the New Deal went in, so I told him: "How can you get a Brakedown from Overwork if you haven't done any?"

"Because the President told everybody in the U. S. A. to get off the Dole & go to work," says my brother-in-law, "so I am having a Brakedown from the Overwork he is going to make me do."

He kind of rose up in bed, Mr. Hopkins, he says:

"That is a dirty way to hit a man behind his back. I go & send Collect Telegrams to my Senator to pass a big Relief Bill, & now the Govt uses the money to try & put me to work."

So then he showed what a hard job Relief is, because you got to fill in Blanks showing what you don't work at & Where you don't work, & also How Much Money you don't get for don't going it.

"It is even worse than a Job," he says, "and just when I get a good position on the Relief, the Govt is trying to throw me off of it. It can't be true," says my Brother-in-Law, and he give a couple of Groans.

So you can see where he will be a tough case, Mr. Hopkins, and if you are going to put him on a job it will have to be a specially soft one.

He isn't in no condition to do an Honest Days Work, so is there a job for him on the Govt payroll?

Yrs. hopefully,

W. NORMAN.
